PUBLISHER'S FOREWORD

Primary Source Microfilm, an imprint of the Gale Group, is proud to present Ireland: Politics and Society through the Press, 1760-1922. This microfilm collection contains a comprehensive selection of international, national and local titles across the three centuries that newspapers have been printed in Ireland. It will facilitate the work of all who are engaged in Irish Studies, allowing researchers across the range of disciplines to access a number of the most formative and informed newspapers and periodicals that illuminate virtually every aspect and phase of Irish history, society, economy, politics and religion from the eighteenth to the twentieth centuries.

The microfilm collection is accompanied by an index. Available in digital as well as in hardback paper format, this index will open the contents of a large number of Irish newspapers and periodicals to closer inspection, making this extraordinary historical material available to a wider public.

A special thank you is due to Dr Marie-Louise Legg whose comprehensive knowledge and generous advice have very substantially contributed to the preparation of the collection for publication.

TECHNICAL NOTE

Primary Source Microfilm has set itself the highest standards in the field of archivally-permanent library microfilming. Our microfilm publications conform to the recommendations of the guides to good microforming and micropublishing practice and meet the standards established by the Association for Information and Image Management (AIIM) and the American National Standards Institute (ANSI).

Attention should be drawn to the nature of the printed material within the collection. This sometimes consists of articles printed or written with a variety of inks and on paper that has become severely discoloured or stained which renders the original document difficult to read. Occasionally volumes have been tightly bound and this leads to text loss. Such inherent characteristics present difficulties of image and contrast which stringent tests and camera alterations cannot entirely overcome.

INTRODUCTION

The Irish press was, until recently, a neglected source for historians and students of literature. Now, however, the role of newspapers has been increasingly emphasised for research into the development of Irish politics and society. Examples include Paul Bew, Vincent Comerford and James S. Donnelly, who have drawn attention to the importance of newspapers in studies of the Famine, Fenianism and popular devotion.

Newspapers were an essential strand in the growth of Irish society and the Irish economy. They were at once a maker of, and a response to, the self-awareness of Ireland as a country separate from Britain, and their advertisements furthered the burgeoning commerce of the country. Their dependence on news from England, which had formed their main source after 1760, waned after the mid-nineteenth century. Post-Famine Ireland recognised the need for industrialisation, and newspapers played a great part in the rise of nationalism.

A starting date of 1760 has been chosen for this project because it marks the accession of George III to the throne and the election of 'patriots' to the Irish parliament the following year. The end-year is 1922, when the Dáil approved the Anglo-Irish Treaty, and British rule in Ireland came formally to an end.

The newspapers of the eighteenth century are used mainly for the material they provide on social and consumer interests, though increasingly politics became their main focus. Advertisements reflect changing tastes through information on imports from abroad, food and drink, articles of clothing and types of decoration. News items from Ireland reflect interest in marriages, fortunes, disasters and scandals. However, in dealing with politics the Irish eighteenth century press must be treated with care. Secret service monies were granted to some papers to support the government, which also provided subsidies through the publication of proclamations and official advertisements.

Throughout the nineteenth century, political movements recognised that the press was an important vehicle for their propaganda. Gladstone assisted the rise of the Irish nationalist press when he abolished taxes on paper, advertisements and print in the 1850s. Newspapers were used by the movements for Repeal, for Home Rule, the Land League and Parnellism. After initial hesitation, the Fenian leader, James Stephens founded the Irish People.

In the twentieth century, and in particular during the First World War, Irish newspapers were subject to seizure and censorship by Dublin Castle. Newspapers were the voice of the Roman Catholic Church, the Orange Order and the Presbyterian Church, and the dwindling conservative press in the south of Ireland reflected the fears of members of the minority Church of Ireland. The Irish press published the writing of James Clarence Mangan, Thomas Davis, J.M. Synge, W.B. Yeats and James Joyce.

Title selection policy

Newspapers and journals have been chosen for inclusion here for their importance at different periods of history and for their appeal to a broad range of research interests. Demographers and students of urban history and social change use newspapers for evidence on the development of towns and industries and emigration abroad. Genealogists and family historians look to the press not only for advertisements of births and deaths, but also for land holdings and general social activity.

Specific research areas supported by this project

- Eighteenth-century patriots and radicals and the 1782 parliamentary reforms

The Dublin Evening Post (c.1778-1875) supported Henry Flood, the patriot leader, in opposition to Henry Grattan, whose articles were published by its chief rival, the Freeman's Journal (Dublin 1763-1922). The Hibernian Journal or Chronicle of Liberty (Dublin 1771-1821) also supported Henry Flood and initially advocated the non-sectarian policies of the United Irishmen, as did the Hibernian Telegraph (Dublin 1798-1810). The Northern Star (Belfast 1792-97) was founded by the United Irishmen and had a large circulation, though repeatedly prosecuted by the government. The Volunteer's Journal (Dublin 1783-86) was an anti-government paper which wanted severance from England, and the Cork Evening Post (1755-1806) published the resolutions of the Cork Union Volunteers in the 1780s.

- Daniel O'Connell, the Repeal movement, Young Ireland and the 1848 Rebellion

The Pilot (Dublin 1829-49) unswervingly supported O'Connell, despite his maverick attitude to the press. The Limerick Reporter and Tipperary Vindicator (Limerick 1839-96) and the Galway Vindicator (1841-99) were founded to advance O'Connell's cause in the provinces. With the rise of Young Ireland, Charles Gavan Duffy, Thomas Davis and others founded The Nation (Dublin 1842-96), which published both political news and essays, and poetry. The Irish Felon (1848) succeeded John Mitchel's United Irishman (1848) to advocate insurrection and violence.

- Great Famine

As well as the Dublin papers, such as The Nation, provincial papers like the Sligo Champion, the Connaught Telegraph, the Limerick Reporter and Tipperary Vindicator, the Kilkenny Journal, and the Galway Vindicator deal with the day-to-day events in the course of the disaster. The Dublin Mercantile Advertiser and the Farmers' Gazette and Journal of Practical Horticulture (Dublin 1842-1963) cover the movements of markets and prices during the period.

- The Tenant League

The Tenant Right movement was the first political group to use the press to real effect to advance its cause. The Northern Whig (Belfast 1824-1963) organised the Tenant Right conference in 1852, attended by the editors of the Limerick Reporter and Tipperary Vindicator (Limerick 1839-96), the Londonderry Journal (1772-) and The Nation (Dublin 1842-96).

- Fenianism

Both overtly and covertly, Fenianism and proto-Fenians used the press, with varying success in the face of the authorities. The Ulsterman in Belfast, later the Irishman in Dublin (Belfast/Dublin 1852-81) and Richard Pigott's Flag of Ireland (Dublin 1868-81) published articles by Fenians. Martin O'Brennan's Connaught Patriot (Tuam 1859-69) put forward the policies of the National Brotherhood of St. Patrick, the Fenian front organisation, as did the Galway American (1863-65). The short-lived Irish People (1865-66) was founded by James Stephens, the Fenian leader.

- The Home Rule movement

Various papers, including Freeman's Journal (Dublin 1763-1922), and The Nation (Dublin 1842-96) advanced the cause of Home Rule, as did the Kilkenny Journal (1766-1965), but the number of papers who professed to advocate Home Rule policies is large.

- The establishment of the Land League

United Ireland/Suppressed United Ireland/Insuppressible (Dublin 1881-98), was established by C.S. Parnell to assist the National Land League through its branches all over Ireland. In the provinces, such papers as the Kerry Sentinel (Tralee 1877-1918) and the Sligo Champion (Sligo 1836-) are valuable for their news of the activities of branches of the League and their resolutions. Patrick Ford's Irish World (New York 1870-1922) founded branches all over America, and brought news of the Land League from Ireland. Although James Daly, owner of the Connaught Telegraph (1830-) was the organiser of the first Land League meeting in 1879, he was in general hostile to its leaders in Dublin. The Cork Constitution (1822-1924), a conservative paper, provides the reactions of the increasingly beleaguered minority.

- Nationalism after the death of Parnell

William O'Brien founded the Irish People in September 1899 as the voice of the United Irish League, dedicated to the issue of land. O'Brien went on to found the Cork Accent (1910) and the Cork Free Press (1910-6) as anti-sectarian papers supporting the All-for-Ireland League. The differing political voices in the debate over Irish independence are provided in D.P. Moran's The Leader (Dublin 1900-71) and Arthur Griffith's United Irishman (1899-1906).

- Architecture and town planning

The Dublin Builder/Irish Builder (1842-1966) has information on new and ancient building in Ireland, together with town plans. It is also of interest to genealogists as it has regular articles on family history. The Dublin Penny Journal/Irish Penny Journal (1832-3) was founded by Caesar Otway and the antiquarian George Petrie to make the history and antiquities of Ireland known to its people.

- Economic history

Pue's Occurrences (Dublin (1703-80) specialised in advertisements for country houses. The Belfast Mercantile Journal (1822-94) and the Dublin Mercantile Advertiser (ca 1818-65) both provide information on prices, markets and commodities over a long period of time. The Farmers' Gazette and Journal of Practical Horticulture (Dublin 1842-1963) has detailed information on sales in the Landed Estates Court and news of the activities of agricultural societies.

The Irish Law Times and Solicitors Journal (1867-96) has news of the course of current cases and judgements, and is of particular value in the absence of legal archives.

- The Roman Catholic Church

The Irish Ecclesiastical Record (1864-1968) was founded by Cardinal Cullen to disseminate news of the hierarchy at a time of rising nationalism. The Irish Catholic (1888-) has the work of the Catholic Church and charities all over the country and news from abroad.

- The Irish literary revival

The Irish Homestead (Dublin 1895-1923) was founded by Horace Plunkett as part of his agricultural co-operative movement, but it also published fiction, including that of new Irish writers like James Joyce. D.P. Moran founded The Leader (Dublin 1900-71) to attack the influence of England and the English language in Ireland, and Arthur Griffith's New Ireland Review (Dublin 1894-1911) published George Russell ('AE'), W.B. Yeats and George Moore. Fáinne An Lae/An Claidheamh Soluis (Dublin 1898-1917) was the bilingual journal of the Gaelic League which supported the Gaelic cultural ideas of Douglas Hyde.

- The Irish abroad

The press, especially in the nineteenth century, reflected the strong relationship between Ireland and its people scattered abroad. Newspapers, particularly on the west coast advertised emigration agents and passages, and the Irish World was founded in New York in 1870 to maintain the links between Irish emigrants and their mother country.

Select Bibliography

Researchers using the Irish press need to take some care to establish the policies of the titles' editors, which varied from time to time according to whether the paper was in receipt of government money or possibly keeping a low profile because of recent prosecution. The select bibliography below has information on the background to a large number of newspapers which should prove a useful guide.

TITLES TO BE INCLUDED IN THE COLLECTION

Titles so far identified for inclusion in the programme have been carefully selected for their relevance, their perceived scarcity, and their absence in complete runs from any other microform project. While several titles have been filmed previously in part, particular value exists in the new collection which brings together runs as complete as possible, where necessary collated from several libraries.
