Pervoe maia 1891 goda; chetyre rechi rabochikh proiznesennyya na tainom sobranii v Peterburge s prilozheniem adresa peterburgskikh rabochikh N.V. Shelgunovu i predisloviem G. Plekhanova.
Zheneva, Tip. Sots.-demokrata. 1892
Books & Pamphlets; xvi, 20 p.; 15.5 cm; (Rabochaia biblioteka, 6); First hectographed in St. Petersburg. Vaganian 112; This pamphlet is important because it contains the speeches delivered at the first May Day demonstration ever held in Russia proper. There is disagreement about the authorship of the four speeches: The first was by Fedor Afanas'ev according to Nevskii, V.I., Deiateli revoliutsionnago dvizhenie v Rossii, vol. v, pts. 1 and 2: Sotsial-demokraty, 1880-1904 (Moscow, 1931-1933), p. 163. On the other hand, Sviatlovskii, V.V., "Na zare rossiiskoi sotsial-demokratii," Byloe, no. 19, 1922, p. 154 says the first speaker was N.D. Bogdanov; The second speaker was V. Proshin according to Sviatlovskii, p. 156. Nevskii, vol. v, p. 385 says that the second speech was by N.D. Bogdanov; According to Nevskii, vol. v, p. 385, N.D. Bogdanov also delivered the third speech. Sviatlovskii attributed this speech to different people at different times and once confessed that he forgot who wrote it. (See S. Valk, "Materialy k istorii pervogo maia v Rossii," Krasnaia letopis', no. 4, 1922, p. 269.) Vlasov, I. I., Tkach Fedor Afanas'ev (1859-1905); materialy dlia biografii (Ivanovo-Voznesensk, 1925), p. 63 states that Fedor Afanas'ev delivered this speech; The fourth speech was by Egor Afanas'ev according to Sviatlovskii, p. 157. Pipes, R., Social Democracy and the St. Petersburg labor movement, 1885-1897 (Cambridge, Mass., 1963), p. 35 states: "Proshin was the fourth speaker."
