INTRODUCTION

The Will to Remember—and File

Dedicated to Emily Millay Haddad, the new caretaker of the Subject Files

Over thirty years ago, I started doing a peculiar thing as a form of political activism—clipping newspaper articles that had anything to do with lesbians, feminists, homosexuals, queers, passing, and sex working women. This simple fact of filing what was being said about us in the media under categories and in archives of our own creation was a supreme moment of retextualization, the beginning of a new history.

For the marginalized, remembering is an act of will, a conscious battle against ordained emptiness. For gay people, remembering is an act of alchemy—the transformation of dirty jokes, limp wrists, a wetted pinky drawn over the eyebrow into bodies loved, communities liberated. When Albert Memmi wrote the following passage in The Colonizer and the Colonized in 1967, he was speaking as a Tunisian Jew who had an intimate understanding of both cultural exile and cultural power:

The colonized draw less and less from their past. The colonizer never even recognized that they had one; everyone knows that the commoner whose origins are unknown has no history. Let us ask the colonized herself: who are her folk heroes, her great popular leaders, her sages? At most she may be able to give us a few names, in complete disarray and fewer and fewer as one goes down the generations. The colonized seems condemned to lose her memory.

My journey with the Lesbian Herstory Archives can be told in two ways—the factual development of a vision into a building filled with the artifacts of lesbian life or the interior movement from my sense as a person deprived of historical memory to one glorying in the possibilities of it. “The journey from deprivation into plentitude” is how I have phrased it on countless archives tours. It is also a journey from silence into speech, from shame into revelation.

That journey is captured in a comment written in the archives’ visitors’ book in 1979:

For two days I have been thinking up wise and pithy things that I should include—no dice. So perhaps, the honest will work better. Only once before have I felt like I’ve come home. This is the second time. I never thought I would be that lucky again—and I realize it is my right to come home to the world. Thanks to you and all the lives in this room for showing me that right! —Judy

One of the first cultural goals of the archives project was to salvage secrets, to stop the destruction of letters and photographs, to rescue the documents of our desire and complexities from family and cultural devaluation. At almost every presentation of the archives slide show, a woman would tell us a tale of loss, of a family member destroying diaries or burning letters. Time and time again a woman would confide how she had destroyed records of her early homoerotic life, whether it was her stash of 1950s lesbian paperbacks, the first cultural products she had ever found that testified to a public lesbian world, or her own letters, the passionate outpourings of young love. I will never forget the moment of understanding that occurred, of relief and sometimes of mourning, when an older woman accepted the possibility that acts she had considered shameful for so long could be seen as cherished cultural moments in a community's history. In the early 1970s, this acceptance of another context for the remembered touch was an act of will.

My history with the growth of the Lesbian Herstory Archives directly parallels my involvement with lesbian feminism and gay liberation. Just as my queer past was constructed by social judgments and culturally restrictive politics, my hope evolved from grassroots possibilities. The early 1970s, so deeply influenced by the progressive movements of the 1960s, were years when many people constructed new social selves.

Inception of the Movement

One of the most vital sources of new ideas about gender and sexuality was the flourishing women's movement of the mid-1960s and early 1970s. Fueled by the organizational abilities of women who had honed their skills in the new left, civil rights, and anti-war movements, this second wave of feminism launched a more radical questioning of how traditional gender expectations impacted women's lives. Meeting in small groups in Chicago, Hartford, Detroit, and New York (the early versions of consciousness-raising groups), women engaged in intense political and cultural discussions—ranging from the economics of housework to the myth of the vaginal orgasm. As the role of men in all aspects of private and national life came under scrutiny, divergent views of who or what was the real enemy of women's autonomy led to an outpouring of pamphlets, leaflets, position papers, and manifestoes. Groups such as Cell 16 (1968) out of Chicago, Redstockings (1969), and New York Radical Feminists (1969) were the more radical voices of the movement while the National Organization of Women (NOW, 1966) saw itself as the moderate national face of American feminism.

In 1969, another history broke new ground. After decades of shame and state control, gay men, women, and transgendered people took to the streets not for the first time, but in a way and in a place that captured world attention—the Stonewall Rebellion in New York City's Greenwich Village. Within a year, gay people had formed their own second wave liberation movement, spearheaded by groups such as the Gay Liberation Front (GLF) and the Gay Activist Alliance (GAA). With varying degrees of success lesbians who were also feminists tried to make a home for themselves in the new gay rights movement.

Tensions between movement lesbians and heterosexual women were also on the rise. As more and more lesbians came out in the women's movement, leaders like Betty Friedan worried that the "Lavender Menace," as she termed it, would undermine the respectability of the national movement. In May 1970, the opening night of the Second Congress to Unite Women, seventeen members of Radicalesbians, wearing Lavender Menace t-shirts, stood up in the audience, proclaiming their refusal to accept second-class citizenship in the women's movement. In the same year, members of this group produced a two-sided broadsheet, "Woman-Identified Women," the first document to voice an independent, even militant lesbian-feminist movement that believed relationships between women could be the basis for a new cultural and political order. In a short time, lesbian separatism, the attempt to establish autonomous lesbian spaces and institutions, became a national movement. Without these ten years of diverse grassroots political and cultural struggles, the Lesbian Herstory Archives would not have come into being.

In 1973, a few of us who worked in or were being educated by the City University system of New York, people such as Martin Duberman and Jonathan Katz, founded an organization called the Gay Academic Union (GAU). This was an example of how we did things back then. If there was a problem of lesbian or gay exclusion or misrepresentation, we came up with an organization to address it. Concerned with the plight of gay students and teachers, the GAU became a rallying place for early gay scholarship and battles against homophobia in the educational system.

Founding of the Lesbian Herstory Archives

The Lesbian Herstory Archives was conceived in 1974 in discussions with members of a women's GAU consciousness-raising group, women such as Deborah Edel, a lesbian feminist who became, along with myself, a 1950s fem and the ongoing founders of the Archives; Julia Penelope Stanley, a staunch lesbian separatist; and Pamela, a political lesbian. Here in embryonic form were the 1970s streams of consciousness, ranging from pre-Stonewall to gay liberation to lesbian separatism to "lesbian" as a political identification without sexual significance. Here also was the beginning of the discourse about memory, history, gender, and sexuality that would inform the Archives for the next thirty years of its existence, particularly its subject files.

From the Archives' Newsletter, no. 1, 1975:

The Lesbian Herstory Archives exists to gather and preserve records of lesbian lives and activities so that future generations will have ready access to materials relevant to their lives. The process of gathering this material will also serve to uncover and collect our herstory denied to us previously by patriarchal historians in the interests of the culture which they serve. The existence of these archives will enable us to analyze and reevaluate the lesbian experience; we also anticipate that the existence of these archives will encourage lesbians to record their experiences in order to formulate our living herstory.

We will collect and preserve any materials that are relevant to the lives and experiences of lesbians: books, magazines, journals, news clippings (from establishment, feminist or lesbian media), bibliographies, photos, historical information, tapes, films, diaries, oral histories, poetry and prose, biographies, autobiographies, notices of events, posters, graphics and other memorabilia.

With its collection of lesbians speaking for themselves in myriad ways, the archives were intended to be our answer to the medical, legal, and religious colonization of our lives. Since we had not been trained as archivists, we were free to invent archives that reflected our political near past. Thus many of the archives' principles are a radical departure from conventional archival practices as they existed in the early 1970s.

- All lesbian women must have access to the archives; no academic, political, or sexual credentials may be required for usage of the collection; race and class must be no barrier for use or inclusion.
- The archives shall be housed within the community, not on an academic campus that is by definition closed to many women.
- The archives shall be involved in the political struggles of all lesbians.
- Archival skills shall be taught, one generation of lesbians to another, breaking the elitism of traditional archives.
- The community should share in the work of the archives.
- The archives will collect the prints of all our lives, not just preserve the records of the famous or the published.
- Funding shall be sought from within the communities the archives serve, rather than from outside sources.

In 1975, the growing collection was housed in the large Upper West Side New York apartment I shared with Deborah Edel. In the early years we built the collection by scouring small-town library and church book-sale tables, often finding a rare lesbian novel that had been selected for throwaway. In the mail, we would frequently get hand-made posters and other memorabilia that had been saved from trash heaps. So many times did this reversal of cultural fortune happen that we spoke publicly about transforming what this society considered garbage into a people's history.

In 1978, Judith Schwartz, the pioneering grassroots lesbian historian, joined Deborah and me as coordinators of the archives, which by then were filling most of the apartment. Since 1976, Deborah and I had been touring the country with the Archives slide show, in an attempt to spread the word about this new project. We presented the show anywhere we were asked to speak: in private homes; in bars; in churches and synagogues; and in community meeting places. For most lesbians, the thought that their lives were of historical significance was a new idea. Our message was that every lesbian life was a famous one. Soon women were waiting for us with their photograph albums or poetry manuscripts or softball caps. As of 2004, the Archives housed over 20,000 volumes, 12,000 photographs, 400 special collections, 2,000 periodical titles, 3,000 organizational and subject files, thousands of feet of film and video footage, art and artifacts, musical records and tapes, posters and t-shirts, buttons, and personal memorabilia such as the uniform a lesbian medic wore in the Vietnam War and the famous yellow skates Maxine Feldman, the pioneering lesbian comic performer, wore in the photograph on her first album.

The collection displays hard hats and hobnail boots of a lesbian steel worker from the 1960s next to pasties and glossy prints of a famous lesbian stripper of the 1940s. They, in turn, are joined by the Lavender Menace t-shirt of the NOW rebellion in the early 1970s. Photographs of bar patrons of the 1930s are in the same room as images from the Michigan Womyn's Music Festival. A Daughters of Bilitis (DOB) certificate of organization, an artifact from the late 1950s, shares a shelf with a Lesbian Avengers poster, an artifact from the American urban 1990s. A copy of "Women-Identified Women," the manifesto of the early days of lesbian feminism, lies next to an album cover featuring the smiling boyish face of Billy Tipton, the jazz musician who was born a woman but passed as a man for most of his life.

Before we explore the subject files in depth, two more moments of the Archives' growth have to be noted: in 1980, the Archives was incorporated as the Lesbian Educational Herstory Foundation, Inc., a not-for-profit foundation, and in 1992, after a national grassroots fund-raising campaign, the collection moved to its present home in Park Slope, Brooklyn—a four-story limestone building, the culmination of the dreams of communal liberation fostered by the social change movements of the 1960s.

The Subject Files Collection of the Lesbian Herstory Archives

An integral part of the collection from its beginning, the subject files were conceived as a one-stop research center, the place where the visitor would get a sense of the possibilities of her topic. This sense of the materials' richness was both an archival goal and a cultural one. Our patrons often came to us frustrated by the paucity of information in other research centers, a scarcity that often reflected the secrecy and shame that marked our lives for much of the first part of the twentieth century. Running along one wall of the apartment were five cabinets filled with acid-free files on every topic of interest to lesbians, feminists, and queers. The creation of the subject file names was and continues to be an ongoing cultural project; new files are constantly being added as subjects emerge within this national and international discourse on gender and society. Our material on gender as of the early 2000s includes the rich heritage of transmen and women.

This project was the first to undertake naming the subjects of our past and present lives. Because of the varied background of the coordinators, many streams of the modern lesbian experience are represented in our subject headings. For the first time in library or archival history, "fem" and "butch" are subject headings, as are lesbian "separatism," "S&M," and "land" (lesbian collectives living on the land). Because we were the first to codify lesbian experience in this way, we sent out our evolving subject files headings to other groups undertaking this same task. Our namings did not remain fixed; often, they would be revised as new ideas surfaced. For instance, the files on women of color went from black to African American to African-Ancestral Lesbians. Thus even the namings reflect an ongoing historical discussion. Our understanding was that the word "lesbian" should be understood before each subject, so, for instance, the subject "adoption" should be read as "lesbians and adoption."

Though the actual filing began in 1973, the material in the files ranges back through the past. We soon began including photocopied chapters from books and journals, flyers and announcements, and treatises to the original newspaper clippings. Because they have been compiled for over thirty years, the files provide layered discussions of topics, moving back and forth between decades, revealing contradictions and on-going connections. For instance, the files on “family” include the first Protection of the Family Acts in this country, the redefinition of family of the 1980s and 1990s, and new concerns about family in the early 2000s.

Some of the files played a part in changing the history for which they are named. For instance, one of the hotly contested topics of the 1970s was “lesbian mothers.” We did our best to collect all the legal briefs on this subject, and soon lawyers were consulting the Archives for case preparations. Our holdings were so large, the files spilled over into boxes, a situation that applied to other very active files, such as those on religion, feminism, women’s liberation movement, publishers, and music. In the early 1990s, when Lee Hudson made a film to sensitize the New York police to violence against lesbians and gay men, she used images and texts from our files on homophobia. The subject files on the 1970s women’s liberation movement are a history of the time, with many rare broadsheets and publications, even handwritten notes from some of the many organizational meetings that took place around the country. The documents pertaining to the history of the women’s movement and gay liberation are also in these files.

The history files include material ranging from the Greek classics to the first years of the twenty-first century. The McCarthy period, a separate file, tracks the early homophile movement. Arranged by decades, the history files show how lesbians and transgendered people are re-imagined and re-marketed in the American social imagination.

The more than 1,700 subject files encompass diverse, wide-ranging topics: political activism, health and illness, cultural expressions, Anita Bryant, the sex wars, aging, passing women, reproductive rights, bisexuality, bars, lesbians in prison and the military, and quirky byways like lesbian gardeners. As a whole, the Archives represent different discourses about a people’s movement and illustrate how people can live and learn together. The subject files present a vision of history that is in effect a conversation about possibilities, lineages, and fertile contradictions.

EDITORIAL NOTE

Files from the Lesbian Herstory Archives Subject Files, from the holdings of the Lesbian Herstory Archives/Lesbian Herstory Educational Foundation, are published in alphabetical order in six parts with the following folder ranges:

- Part 1, Abortion - Braille
- Part 2, Breasts - Fem
- Part 3, Feminism – International Lesbian Movement
- Part 4, International Women’s Movement – Peace Camps
- Part 5, Peace Corps – Speakers Bureau
- Part 6, Spinsters - Youth

Organization and Format

The Lesbian Herstory Archives Subject Files offer a wealth of information on all aspects of lesbian life, communities, and activism from the 1950s through the present. The collection’s chronological focus is on the 1970s, 1980s, and 1990s, although there are important documents related to earlier periods, including materials on pre-Stonewall lesbian life and even earlier periods. The majority of the collection consists of ephemeral materials that are hard to find in published form. The collection is particularly rich in materials documenting the experience of lesbian women in a number of ethnic communities.

This guide lists materials in the order in which they appear on the reels. Materials are arranged on the reels according to an alphabetized listing of the topics, as listed on each folder. Occasional cross references will aid the reader to locate related materials.

Selection Process

The selection of materials for the microform edition of the Lesbian Herstory Archives Subject Files was based on several criteria:

Relevancy

This microfilm collection comprises selected materials from the subject files of the Lesbian Herstory Archives. Selections emphasize the relevance of the material to the history of lesbian life, communities, and activism in America..

Rarity

Some printed materials, such as commonly held newspaper articles, were excluded because they can be found in many libraries. Materials available without charge to the public on an organization’s website were also excluded.

Research Need

Certain materials were not microfilmed largely because of their relatively low priority with respect to research needs. Examples of such materials include multiple fund-raising solicitations, which had been collected as part of the materials from a particular organization.

Privacy

Some materials could not be microfilmed for reasons of confidentiality. In the interest of protecting the privacy of individuals, a concerted effort was made to exclude records that contained people's home addresses, phone numbers, Social Security numbers, or personal financial information. Personal letters and private emails were excluded unless approved by the Lesbian Herstory Archives.

Notice of Unfilmed Materials

Materials excluded from the microfilm edition are noted in the entry for the file in which they are housed. These materials are available to researchers who use the collection on site at the Lesbian Herstory Archives. Files excluded in their entirety are not listed in this collection guide. These materials are also available to researchers who use the collection on site at the Lesbian Herstory Archives.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The project would not have been possible without assistance from many individuals. Primary Source Microfilm wishes to thank the Coordinators of the Lesbian Herstory Archives for their commitment to making these resources widely available and their support of this project; special thanks to Maxine Wolfe for her enthusiasm and commitment to making this project happen and for her organizational skills. Thanks to the volunteer staff of the Archives for accommodating the preparation and scanning operation while the Archives continued to serve researchers. The smooth operation of this project is due in no small part to Emily Millay Haddad and Susanna Taipale, for their dedication to the task of physical preparation of all the materials in this edition and for entering the data on each file into a database on which this guide is based; these dual tasks involved a measure of conservation, a little detective work, a dose of sound judgment and analytical skills, and good computer skills. We also wish to thank Joan Nestle, the co-founder of the Lesbian Herstory Archives, for graciously writing an illuminating introduction to the collection that captures the essence of the Archive and its commitment to preserving a record of its work. Barbara Rader, acquisitions editor at Primary Source Microfilm, first recognized the value of this collection, developed the project, and served as its editorial manager; Bennett Lovett-Graff, PSM's managing editor, provided needed consultation; Michelle Fleischer organized the work flow plan for the project; Kimberly White, PSM's student aide, assisted with the creation and development of the guide; and the PSM manufacturing staff, including JoAnn Lebel and Susan Vidal, smoothly oversaw the manufacturing operation on the microfilm edition.
