COLLECTION OVERVIEW

For almost seventy-five years of this century Walter Lippmann knew and corresponded with a great many men and women in most parts of the world who were deeply involved in and helped shape the course of events. His papers, starting in 1906 with his undergraduate years at Harvard and ending with his death in 1974 at the age of eighty-five, constitute an important contribution to the history of our own time. They give a picture of the public life of this century from the angle of vision of an author, editor, journalist and political philosopher. In the political drama, Walter Lippmann was back stage, on stage, and among the critics in the stalls.

The Walter Lippmann Papers (MS. Group No. 326), consisting of 115 linear feet of correspondence and other types of material, are divided into the following ten series:

Series No.

- | | |
|------|--|
| I | Correspondence, 1906 – 1930 |
| II | Requests To Speak, Write Or Reprint, 1906 - 1930 |
| III | Correspondence, 1931-1974 |
| IV | Requests To Speak, Write Or Reprint, 1931 - 1974 |
| V | Public Opinion Mail, 1931 – 1974 |
| VI | Manuscripts and/or Typescripts |
| VII | Diaries And Engagement Books |
| VIII | Honors |
| IX | Photographs, Portraits And Sketches |
| X | Films, Recordings And Tapes |

Because of the volume of the papers, the first four series are divided into the periods 1906 - 1930 and 1931 - 1974. The year 1931 was considered a logical series break because Walter Lippmann's career as an editor ended with the demise of the New York World in February and his career as a columnist for the New York Herald Tribune began in September. A description of the content and arrangement of each of the ten series immediately precedes the folder listing for the series in this register.

Researchers should be aware that there are two Walter Lippmann manuscript groups at the Yale Library, with separate registers. The group described above, and in this register, is known as the Walter Lippmann Papers, Manuscript Group Number 326. The second is known as the Robert O. Anthony Collection of Walter Lippmann, Manuscript Group 766. The distinction between the two is that Group 326 consists of Lippmann's personal papers and manuscripts of his writings, while Group 766 is, in general, a collection of his published work. Between the two collections, probably no other journalist and few public figures will have had a career so carefully and completely documented for the historian of the future.

It is worth noting that only materials from Series I, III, V, VII, and portions of a separate group recently acquired by the Manuscripts and Archives Division of Sterling Memorial Library at Yale University have been included in the microform edition of The Walter Lippmann Papers.

Accession

The Walter Lippmann Papers (MS Group No. 326, Manuscripts and Archives) became the property of the Yale University Library by deed of gift in July, 1944. Inasmuch as the 1940s were probably the busiest years of his career as author and columnist, Lippmann needed his files for reference purposes, and it was not until 1963, some twenty years later, that the papers were actually removed from his home in Washington, D.C., and deposited in the Yale Library.

As early as 1941 Walter Lippmann had given to Yale some 300 numbers of serials and pamphlets for the Yale War Collection through his long-time friend, Wilmarth S. Lewis, Yale '18, who was active in the affairs of the Yale Library. In 1942 Lippmann wrote his lawyer, Albert Stickney, that he had been asked by the Library of Congress and also by the Yale University Library to give them all his papers, and that this action would involve a change in his will when he knew more clearly just exactly what he wanted to do. Two years later, in a letter to Lewis dated July 3, 1944, Lippmann wrote: "I took the invitation from Yale as a favor to me, and a very great distinction, not as something I was doing for Yale. It never occurred to me to consult Harvard, where I had been an overseer, about my papers any more than I might have asked them if they were going to give me an honorary degree." Lewis replied on July 5th: "Needless to say, I am very happy that you have given Yale your papers. The Yale Library is one of the chief things in my life, and it is a joy for me that it is to have this great collection. The scholars of the future will now have to come to Yale to study our time." On the same date, Charles Seymour, President of Yale University, wrote Lippmann: "May I express again and more emphatically our deep gratitude for the gift of your papers. Their value in the Yale collection will be obviously enormous," and in a letter the next day Lewis reminded Lippmann: "I first spoke to you about your papers two years ago."

The decision in 1944 also involved a collection of published works by and about Walter Lippmann which had been assembled as a hobby, beginning in 1931, by Robert Olney Anthony, Amherst '26, a telephone executive for the Bell System in New York City. His collection included magazine articles, a complete file of Lippmann's "Today and Tomorrow" column (1931-1967) which he indexed, other newspaper articles, bulletins and pamphlets concerning Lippmann, newspaper clippings, and books by, about, or prominently mentioning him. Both for the protection of the collection and to increase its availability to scholars, it was a propitious time to transfer his collection to the Yale Library. Lippmann agreed that both collections should be kept together, and in 1944 when Lippmann decided to give his papers to Yale, Anthony also offered his associated collection. Two years later when Anthony was transferred from New York to the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company in Providence, Rhode Island, on December 2, 1946, his collection was transported to the Yale Library. His collection is listed as the Robert O. Anthony Collection of Walter Lippmann (MS Group No. 766, Manuscripts and Archives). On December 3, 1946, Anthony was named curator of the newly-formed collection by the Yale Corporation.

During 1945 and early in 1946 Lippmann sent to Yale several items, e.g., manuscripts of some of his books, and the announcement of his gift appeared in the press in June, 1946. Also in 1946 at the time of the Anthony collection move, the library truck picked up Lippmann's bound volumes of the editorial pages of the New York World for the period

19254 through February, 1931, which were in his office at the New York Herald Tribune in New York City.

It was not until February, 1963, when he was almost seventy-four, that Lippmann felt he could give up the bulk of his papers, consisting at that time of forty-two large files of personal correspondence and two boxes of original manuscripts. They were shipped to Providence, Rhode Island, for processing by Anthony and eventual shipment to Yale. In 1964 another shipment arrived in Providence, consisting of diaries and engagement books through 1959.

In 1964, Richard H. Rovere began his work in both collections as the authorized biographer of Walter Lippmann, with the assistance of Gary Clarkson. Four years later, finding himself uneasy in the role of biographer without assurance of complete independence as to content, Rovere, in 1968, found a successor in Ronald Steel, a journalist who had been a foreign service officer. Steel's biography is in preparation for expected publication in the fall of 1978.

INTRODUCTION TO THE COLLECTION

Correspondence, 1931-1974

The correspondence in this series begins in 1931 and contains the same format of "Selected" and "General" as Series I, which ended with the year 1930. It concludes, of course, with Walter Lippmann's death on December 14, 1974, although some material of interest subsequent to that date is also included.

As mentioned in the introduction, the year 1931 witnessed the end of the career of Walter Lippmann as an editor, with the sale of the New York World newspaper in February, 1931. His noted career as "dean of the columnists" started with his "Today and Tomorrow" column in the New York Herald Tribune in September of that year.

Lippmann continued extensive correspondence during 1931-1974 with several correspondents from the earlier period, prominent among whom were Hamilton Fish Armstrong, Newton D. Baker, Bernard Berenson, Robert H. Brand, William M. Chadbourne, Grenville Clark, Felix Frankfurter, Ralph Hayes, John Maynard Keynes, Stanley King, Thomas W. Lamont, Russell C. Leffingwell, Allan Nevins, Ellery Sedgwick and Herbert Bayard Swope. He corresponded extensively, also, with Oscar Cox and Lewis W. Douglas starting in 1932, and with Arthur W. Schlesinger, Jr., in 1950.

As the folder listing for Series III, upon which Part 2, Section 1 and Section 2 of the microform edition of this collection depends, Lippmann corresponded with hundreds of other persons from all walks of life who became well known by the middle of the twentieth century and later.

Correspondence relating to Walter Lippmann's important activities as an alumnus of Harvard has been separated from other correspondence and is placed under "Harvard" at the end of the alphabetical section in boxes 113, 114 and 115. His activities included election as an Overseer in 1933 and appointment to Visiting Committees for the Departments of Government, Economics, Philosophy and the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, as well as the Committee to Visit Harvard College.

Lippmann's relation to the Lucius W. Nieman Fellowships at Harvard "to promote and elevate standards of journalism and educate persons deemed specially qualified..." is important to note, for he was in at the creation. A member of the Board of Overseers in February, 1936, when Harvard was notified of the Nieman bequest, President Conant consulted with Lippmann on the Nieman idea as early as May of that year. Lippmann joined fully with the plan and accepted appointment on the first Nieman selecting committee along with Ellery Sedgwick and John Stewart Bryan. The first fellowships, nine in number, were awarded for the academic year 1938-1939.

A release from the Harvard University News Office, dated September 15, 1977, announced a grant of $100,000.00 to the Nieman Foundation for Journalism in memory of Walter Lippmann. The grant derived from the bequest he left to Harvard at the time of his death in December, 1974. The new Nieman headquarters, known as the Walter Lippmann House, will be at One Francis Avenue, a structure built in 1836 in a Greek revival style by the Harvard College carpenter, Ebenezer Francis. To match the grant and also create a full endowment for the Walter Lippmann House, a memorial fund has been launched to raise $400,000.00 from journalists and others who were friends and admirers of Lippmann.

Researchers interested in the Lippmann family papers are directed to a separate “Lippmann” section at the end of the Selected Correspondence. This section, consisting of boxes 113-123, contains all correspondence between Lippmann and Harvard University, Harvard Clubs, publications and Visiting Committees (3 boxes). It also contains notes on more than twenty-five trips taken both in this country and abroad during the period 1934 to 1966 (3 boxes). Correspondence in other boxes in this section is concerned with Walter Lippmann’s 70th, 75th, 80th and 85th birthdays, financial matters, and his several residences. The transcripts of the interviews conducted by Allan Nevins and Dean Albertson in 1953 for the Oral History Collection at Columbia University are also found here.

Correspondence between Lippmann and his second wife, Helen Byrne Armstrong during 1937 and 1938 has been placed in box 124. This correspondence covers the period of the divorce proceedings of Walter Lippmann and his first wife, Faye (Albertson), and Helen and Hamilton Fish Armstrong; Helen’s sojourn of several weeks in Reno, Nevada; and their subsequent marriage in March, 1938.

Some personal correspondence and papers of Helen Byrne Lippmann were found among Walter Lippmann’s papers. These have been placed in box 125 at the end of the Selected Correspondence.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The project would not have been possible without assistance from many individuals. Primary Source Media wishes to thank Harriet Jackson, who first recognized the value of this collection; Bennett Lovett-Graff, who assumed responsibility for development of the collection during a short interim period; Olga Virakhovskaya, lead editor on the development and publication of this collection; Christine Weideman, Assistant Head of Manuscripts and Archives, at the Manuscripts and Archives Division of Sterling Memorial Library at Yale University, where the original collection resides; Raman Prasad, whose indefatigable work in preparing the collection for microfilming and review and revision of its catalog for accuracy has proven an enormous boon; Tom Mahoney, camera technician extraordinaire; and Gail Lago, project manager for the collection.
