SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

When George H. W. Bush became President in 1989, the United States had already begun to see a thawing of relations with the Soviet Union. President Bush spoke of softening relations in his inaugural address, claiming that "a new breeze is blowing," and adding that "great nations of the world are moving toward democracy through the door to freedom." This collection provides an in-depth analysis of the events leading up to the dissolution of the USSR and its implications for U.S.-Soviet relations.

This collection consists of three FOIA files from the Bush Library. The first file contains material related to the Moscow Summit and the August 19-22, 1991 Coup against Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. During the summit, President Bush met with President Gorbachev in Moscow and later visited Kiev. These materials include the planning documents and briefing books related to the Summit. The Coup attempt against Gorbachev began on the morning of the August 19 while he was on vacation, and ended upon his return to Moscow on August 22. This part of the collection contains cables sent to the White House Situation Room concerning day-by-day developments, and conversations between President Bush and other foreign leaders.

The second file contains material related to the dissolution of the Soviet Union. On December 21, 1991, following years of reform and upheaval behind the Iron Curtain, eleven Soviet republics joined together to form the Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS). Four days later, Mikhail Gorbachev resigned as president of the Soviet Union, and on 26 December 1991, the Soviet Union formally ceased to exist. This part of the collection highlights the Bush administration's response to the breakup of the Soviet Union and the formation of the CIS. Documents specifically address issues concerning economic and humanitarian support, diplomatic recognition of the republics, aiding the transition to democratic governments and market economies, and defense issues, particularly the fate and control over the former Soviet Union's vast nuclear arsenal. These documents include suggestions from the public, consultations with Congress, and discussions among federal agencies to formulate American policy concerning the unfolding events in the Soviet Union. Communications between Bush administration officials and corresponding officials in the disintegrating USSR are also included.

This final FOIA file contains materials on the meeting between President Bush and President Mikhail Gorbachev in Malta (December 2–3, 1989) and the subsequent meetings between President Bush and NATO leaders in Brussels, Belgium (December 3–4, 1989). The Malta Conference (technically not a Summit) was the first meeting between the two leaders since President Bush's inauguration. The NATO meeting was held in order for President Bush to brief leaders of Western European nations concerning his meeting with Gorbachev.

There is a significant amount of material from the files of the National Security Council (NSC) and The White House Office of Records Management (WHORM) Subject Categories. This documentation consists primarily of memoranda between staff members passing along the following types of documents (as well as the documents themselves):

talking points for the president's summit sessions and meetings with world leaders; draft remarks for arrival ceremonies and summit sessions; summit meeting agendas; press releases; position papers on topics of interest to NATO member countries and U.S. global leadership; and briefing book papers.

The Staff and Office Files records primarily consist of schedules and itineraries for travel to the summit. Additionally, the materials contain memoranda for and including the following types of documents: meeting schedules and agendas, speech/remark drafts, press releases and a limited amount of background information pertaining to the countries which the president visited during his trip. These records also contain standard logistical information relating to travel, lodging, and media members to be included in the press pool during the trip.

SOURCE & EDITORIAL NOTE

FOIA Request 1999-0304-F, Records on the Dissolution of the Soviet Union; and FOIA Request 1999-0273-F, Records on the Malta Conference: December 1989.

These are records of George Bush, in the custody of the George Bush Presidential Library, College Station, Texas. All available documents have been filmed in their entirety.
