PUBLISHER'S NOTE:

Major Film Periodicals for Media Research commences with the publication of Film Daily and predecessors, and its companion yearbook.

Film Daily and predecessors constitutes Series One. As Professor David Bordwell, Wisconsin Center for Film and Theater Research has commented, this a necessary complement to Variety in that it often deals in more detail with publicity and promotion of films and television.

Film Daily described itself as "international in scope and intimate in character" and for 55 years it was the daily newspaper of the Motion Picture Industry and later of Film and Television. It provided upto-the minute trade news, details of films launched, films in progress, films shelved, takeovers, financial crises, budget difficulties, prizes, awards, and nationwide and international news.

Film Daily was a platform for Major film launches. Almost every issue has 2 or 3 pages devoted to the release of new movies. it was read by theater management and people working on the rental circuits as well as by the financiers in New York and the film-makers in Hollywood. It carried news of box office revenue, theater chain takeovers, and new developments is sound, colour and presentation. Hollywood intrigues and gossip are also included, and the resultant backlash from the Hay Committee, the League of Decency, the Dies Committee and other short-lived or long-term censorship bodies. Court cases are reported and corporate affairs, stock market news, tax and profits, and company liquidations.

News of distribution deals, release schedules, and of cinematographers, film composers and musicians, set designers, producers, actors and directors, provide an in-depth view of the Dream Machine in action. News of the theaters in Atlanta, Boston, Dallas, Grand Rapids, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Portland, St. Louis and San Antonio provide a detailed account of the public response to the movies.

Reviews are also an important feature of Film Daily and these are indexed annually by the Film Daily Yearbook. Lengthy credits and notes of running times are especially helpful, as in the coverage of Sharks and newsreels (with synopses) as well as features. Series One Part One covers the years 1915-1927 Part Two covers 1928-1937, Part Three covers 1938-1948, Part Four covers 1949-1959. This part completes coverage to 1970, when the papers finally closed.

Series Two, already available offers the Film Daily Yearbook and predecessors from 1915 to 1969. When this reference annual was first published, Eric Johnston, then President of the Motion Picture Association of America described it as "an indispensable handbook of our industry". Scholars and librarians still find it so and it is not going too far to describe it as the single most useful reference book for the study of any particular year in movie-making history. Complete sets, such as those provided here, are very rare.

The Yearbook is truly a companion to the Film Daily. Whilst Film Daily offers daily news, developing stories and new releases, the Yearbook takes time to reflect, summarise developments and provides a detailed index to films reviewed in Film Daily. The summary index to all 33,660 titles reviewed is printed in the hardcopy guide supplied with the project. This year on year snapshot of the Movie industry describes the rise and fall of studios, the coming of the sound era, the avent of colur and wide-screen formats, the impact of radio and television and the changing shape and focus of the industry as a whole.

It is rich in statistics, film facts and figuers, news events and box office details. It is hoped that it will provide a basis for much new research.
