SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Presidential Correspondence with Foreign Leaders, 1974-1977

The Presidential Correspondence with Foreign Leaders is one of many subcollections that comprise the National Security Adviser Files. The subcollection described here concerns letters and telegrams exchanged between President Ford and leaders from sixty-four countries. The materials address regional issues as well as issues specific to individual countries and are arranged alphabetically by country and then by name of foreign leader.

The Presidential Correspondence with Foreign Leaders includes material prepared for and by the National Security Adviser and the National Security Council staff. Letters, telegrams, memoranda, notes, and drafts of messages make up the bulk of the collection.

The collection consists primarily of letters, many of them originals, sent by foreign leaders to President Ford and copies of letters and messages sent by President Ford to foreign leaders. Many folders contain supporting materials used in drafting President Ford's letters and telegrams.

The Presidential correspondence ranges from routine courtesy messages to substantive letters on many foreign policy issues. The routine communications, for example, convey congratulations on the assumption of office, invitations to visit, and greetings on national holidays. The substantive letters and telegrams address a wide-range of topics such as Angola and the administration's policy in Africa, the British financial crisis, Cambodia, economic summit meetings, the Middle East peace process, nuclear proliferation, trade, OPEC and oil prices, Cyprus, Spain's shift to democracy, NATO, the final months in South Vietnam, and Soviet influence in Africa and Asia.

Major correspondents include Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau of Canada, Premier Chiang Ching-kuo of the Republic of China (Taiwan), President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing of France, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of the German Democratic Republic (West Germany), the Shah of Iran, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel, Prime Minister Aldo Moro of Italy, Prime Minister Takeo Miki of Japan, President Park Chung Hee of the Republic of Korea (South Korea), President William Tolbert of Liberia, Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto of Pakistan, Premier Chou En-lai of the People's Republic of China, King Faisal and King Khalid of Saudi Arabia, Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Prime Minister James Callaghan of the United Kingdom, President Nguyen Van Thieu of the Republic of Vietnam (South Vietnam), and President Josip Broz Tito of Yugoslavia.

Memoranda of Conversations, 1973-1977

The Memoranda of Conversations (memcons) is one of many subcollections that comprise the National Security Adviser Files. The bulk of the memcons are based on Brent Scowcroft's notes from meetings he attended in his capacity as Deputy Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs and then Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs. In these meetings, Scowcroft took notes on topics pertaining to foreign affairs and national security matters. His notes are not complete verbatim transcripts of conversations and at times appear to be somewhat selective. The notes often include extended quotes from the participants, but occasionally they compress portions of conversations into single sentences such as “Discussion of floating interest rates” or “Described the Angola proposal.”

Following the meetings, Scowcroft had his notes typed up in transcript form. Because Scowcroft’s handwriting was often difficult for his secretaries to decipher, an NSC staff assistant, usually Peter Rodman, would compile the first draft of the memcons. The person drafting the memcons would on occasion make editorial changes to the transcript, such as turning Scowcroft’s notes into complete sentences. In other instances, blank spaces were left in the final draft when Scowcroft’s handwriting proved indecipherable.

In his book Presidential Command: Power, Leadership, and the Making of Foreign Policy from Richard Nixon to George Bush (New York: Alfred A. Knopf, 2009, page 86), Peter Rodman provides a description and analysis of the memcons:

The frequent Oval Office meetings between the new president and his secretary of state were remarkable, as Kissinger has said, for their lack of psychological undercurrents, complexes, or hidden motivations. Brent Scowcroft took rough notes of these meetings, and when they are declassified they will show a relationship of complete openness and mutual confidence. Kissinger kept nothing back, briefing Ford fully on events and personalities and strategies he was proposing. Ford grasped it easily and expressed his own preferences forthrightly. Where foreign policy issues had domestic political repercussions -- for example, in the debate over detente with the Soviet Union, or majority rule in Southern Africa -- Ford conveyed his judgment of his political circumstances and their implications. Where there was a congressional dimension, Ford himself was the master and educated his subordinates in the ins and outs and personalities that he knew better than anyone. Rough as Scowcroft's notes were, these records will show a relationship of trust and a fullness of deliberation going to the heart of the most sensitive issues of the period.

The collection chronicles the practice of diplomacy and presidential decision-making at the highest level. There are more than 1,000 memcons addressing US foreign policy and national security issues during the latter part of the Nixon administration through the entire Ford administration. The memcons are primarily from Presidential meetings in which President Nixon and President Ford met with foreign heads of state and officials, Cabinet members, White House staff members, Congressional leaders, American ambassadors, senior intelligence and national security officials, heads of federal agencies, and other distinguished foreign and American visitors, as well as many private consultative meetings with Henry Kissinger and Brent Scowcroft. While the majority of memcons are from meetings held in Washington, the collection also has memcons from a number of Presidential trips overseas. Several of the memcons are from non-presidential meetings in which Henry Kissinger or Brent Scowcroft was the lead participant. The discussions documented in the memcons are mostly substantive, but on occasion cover lighter fare. Many of the meetings discussed multiple topics and were often very candid, such as when participants were critical of other people’s actions and abilities. Topics addressed in the memcons run the gamut of US foreign policy and national security issues and touch on US relations with many countries from all regions of the world.

The collection’s largest topic is the Middle East, in particular US-Israeli relations and the interim Sinai Agreement between Egypt and Israel. There is information on US policy toward Israel and how this policy fit into the administration's overall policy for the region, and Israeli concerns about US policy toward Israel and the region. Of particular interest are the numerous discussions between President Ford and Henry Kissinger in which they formulate policy and strategy and candidly express their frustrations with Israel's negotiating tactics and strategy during the peace process. There is also much information on the roles and interests of Saudi Arabia, Syria, Iran, Jordan, and Lebanon.

Another major topic is East–West relations, in particular US-Soviet relations. There is information on the Vladivostok Summit, Congressional legislation linking US trade policy to Soviet emigration quotas, arms control and SALT negotiations, grain sales, and cultural exchanges. There is also information on the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe and US relations with other Eastern European countries, most notably Poland, Romania, and Yugoslavia.

The memcons also provide much information on US relations with Western Europe. The materials address diplomatic and economic relations with key allies such as the United Kingdom, West Germany, and France, and multilateral relations with the European Community within the context of NATO and the economic summit meetings. There are important materials on political events in Portugal and Italy, Spain's transition to democracy, and the Greek-Turkish conflict in Cyprus, including the Turkish arms embargo.

In regard to Asia and the Pacific, there is information on the prospective normalization of relations between the US and the People's Republic of China and the impact on US-Taiwanese relations, US involvement and withdrawal from Vietnam, and the Mayaguez Incident. There is also good material on US relations with key allies such as Japan, Thailand, South Korea, Philippines, and Indonesia, as well the fragile relationship between India and Pakistan.

In terms of Africa, the memcons primarily focus on the move to independence and the establishment of a new government in Angola, and the transition to majority rule in Rhodesia/Zimbabwe. There is also information on the regional roles and interests of Zaire, Zambia, and South Africa.

For Latin America, the most substantive materials pertain to US relations with Brazil, Chile, Cuba, Mexico, and Panama. Topics include economic assistance, energy, trade, narcotics control, and the Panama Canal treaty negotiations.

The collection also contains information on a variety of other foreign policy and national security issues, including military base negotiations, mutual defense agreements, arms transfers, the defense budget, the intelligence investigations and the subsequent reorganization of the intelligence community, the US role in a post-Vietnam world, and the impact of the 1976 presidential campaign on foreign policy.
