Introduction

The Tax Records of Cuyahoga, County, Ohio for the years 1819 to 1869, were presented to the Western Reserve Historical Society through William F. Chinnock, Secretary, County Records Commission, Cuyahoga County. Most of the records were received in June 1960, and the remainder in October 1962. They are the first records to come in accordance with a state-approved plan under which the Western Reserve Historical Society is the Official depository of the non-current Cuyahoga County Records of enduring value.

These Records of the Auditor's Office are called "Auditors Tax Duplicates," but for the years shown above they constitute the only known copies. No information is available as to the whereabouts of the tax records between 1810, the date of the formation of the County, and 1819. After 1819, the series breaks off until 1823, but there are no further omissions. In several cases there is more than one volume for each year.

The Records, relating to Cleveland, the townships and villages, contain certain information for the individual company or corporation enumerated for assessment, including, for example, real and personal property valuations. Progress from the simple entries dealing with "road" and "bridge" levies for the early days to the more complex headings of a later period may be noted from volume to volume. In some instances the name of the County auditor has been included with a particular volume, though omitted in others. The auditors occasionally used incorrect or unusual and unfamiliar spellings in their entries for the names of townships, for example: "Stronsville" for Strongsville, "Bricksville" for Brecksville, "Chagrine" for Chagrin and "Middleburg" for Middleburgh.

Generally, the following list will serve to identify each of the volumes of Records by a brief description of the printed material on the front cover or spine of each volume and the localities—city, townships and villages—where the taxes were assessed. It will be seen that the volumes are not uniform in the arrangement of identification employed as to place, year or volume designation on their covers. Likewise, of necessity, the arrangement of the contents differs from year to year, so that the volumes vary in size and depth.
