“The only manuscripts I now possess are some folio volumes. Two of these are the proceedings of the Virginia Company in England. . . . I shall deposit them in the library of the University, where they will be most likely to be preserved with care. . . . I agree with you that it is the duty of every good citizen to use all the opportunities which occur to him for preserving documents relating to the history of our country.”

1826	Died at "Monticello," July 4

Introduction

PREFACE

The appearance of the microfilm edition to which this pamphlet serves as a guide represents the fulfillment of a longstanding commitment by the University of Virginia Library to the acquisition and preservation of original manuscript sources relating to Thomas Jefferson, the University's founder. It is evidence of the Library's determination to make these sources as fully and readily available to scholars as possible, across barriers of time and distance. The professional efforts of the University's manuscripts librarians and archivists through nearly half a century have served these ends.

This guide may also serve as a companion volume to the published calendar of The Jefferson Papers of the University of Virginia, first issued by the Library in 1950 and reissued in 1973 with a supplement (calendar acquisitions 1950-1970) and combined index. The calendar provides full bibliographical data about each item, summaries of texts, and citations to printed versions of the documents, as well as the locations of other manuscript versions. The published calendar does not include documents acquired by the University since 1970, nor a number of items released from restrictions for inclusion in the microfilm edition.

Presently the University's collection of Jefferson papers comprises some 3,400 items. Most are original documents or contemporary transcripts made by secretaries and family members, but some are more recent transcripts and photographic or electrostatic copies of documents which remain in private hands or in less readily accessible institutional repositories. All documents are by or to Jefferson or bear a direct relationship to him. A reasonably full account of their origins and migrations is contained in the note on provenance.

Rich in information on Jefferson's private life, the University's holdings reveal the constancy of his attachment to family and friends as well as the great diversity of his intellectual interests. They testify to his unflagging efforts in his later years to found the University of Virginia and to establish it on a firm footing. These holdings complement the larger collections of mainly official papers at the Library of Congress and of mainly private papers at the Massachusetts Historical Society, as well as somewhat smaller collections at a number of institutions around the United States. These collections and their finding aids are described in a separate section of this guide.

The steady growth of its holdings in recent years confirms the University of Virginia as the principal present day institutional collector of Jefferson manuscripts. This growth is due in large measure to the continued generous support of Jefferson descendants, friends of the Library, and University alumni. It is due also, perhaps equally at present, to the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation at Monticello, which provides a handsome yearly stipend for the purchase of Jefferson documents by the Library, and which acts as a magnet for Jefferson memorabilia of all kinds, including manuscripts which it deposits with the Library as a secure repository for research.

Jefferson's manifest interest in the preservation of his own papers and of historical records generally has been the inspiration for the Library's efforts to contribute to the reconstruction of his extant correspondence by all possible means. He and his nineteenth century contemporaries and descendants might have difficulty understanding the curatorial zeal with which every jotted scrap of itinerary or grocery receipt is grasped after and catalogued, and the editorial compulsion to assemble the whole of this material for scholarly scrutiny. Only by these means, however, may posterity be assured of a firm documentary basis for a full understanding of Jefferson's life and times.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

From its inception in 1972, this microfilm project has occupied the recurrent labors of members of the regular staff of the Manuscripts Department. Particular credit is due to William G. Ray, assisted by Mary Faith Pusey, who established guidelines for the project and carried out the initial work of assembling and checking documents. The present project editor was fortunate to have the creative assistance of a succession of co-workers named on the title page. Anne Freudenberg and Gregory A. Johnson made numerous helpful suggestions, the former on matters of provenance and the latter on technical points relating particularly to the Jefferson drawings. The editor worked closely at every step with Edmund Berkeley, Jr., curator of manuscripts and university archivist, who initiated and directed the project, and who sustained it among departmental priorities.

The work of microfilming was carried through in exemplary fashion by Pauline Page, microphotography technician in the Alderman Library photographic laboratory, under the overall direction of Mac R. Chandler, Director of Graphic Communications. Printing and graphics work was accomplished by Paul W. Weigle and Elbert W. White of the University Printing Office. Margaret O. Clatterbuck typed the index and helped establish its format. Valued assistance in various forms was rendered by Charles L. Flanders, Steven H. Hochman, William L. Beiswanger, Charles L. Granquist, and James A. Bear, Jr.

Colleagues on the manuscripts curatorial staffs of other institutions holding Jefferson manuscripts proved prompt and helpful in answering requests about their holdings. These institutions included the Library of Congress, the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the College of William and Mary, Colonial Williamsburg, the National Archives, the American Philosophical Society, the Missouri Historical Society, the Huntington Library, the New-York Historical Society, the Virginia State Library, and the William L. Clements Library of the University of Michigan. A special debt of gratitude is owed to Julian P. Boyd and his assistant, Ruth W. Lester, for their kindness in permitting access to the Princeton editorial files on donors and depositors.

Special efforts were made to notify and gain permission from each of the more than 150 individuals and institutions listed in Library files as owning some 500 deposited items or originals of items which this Library holds in photostatic or electrostatic form. Almost without exception, the more than eighty owners whom the Library was able to reach proved cooperative when the purposes of the edition were explained to them. Some generously gave the University title to Jefferson documents previously on deposit, and a few volunteered additional Jefferson documents for inclusion that had not previously been known to scholars. Thus the benefits of this canvass well outweighed the vexations with mailings that it entailed.

It seems fitting here to acknowledge by name the many institutions and individuals who have contributed over the years to the building of the Jefferson collection through loans and gifts of manuscripts and through permission for their research use. To their generosity and interest, past and present, the University owes a greater debt of gratitude than it can adequately express.

STATEMENT ON USE

This edition is intended to serve the dual purposes of preservation and personal reference. Users of the microfilm are cautioned that further reproduction or publication of the contents of a letter or document, in whole or in part, may not be made without permission from the owner of the original. Disregard of this injunction may involve the user in violation of property rights held by the owner of the physical property. Common law literary property rights inhering in heirs of the writers of unpublished documents will be superseded after 1 January 1978 by the Copyright Law of 1976.

Requests for permission to reproduce or publish the contents of items on this microfilm should be directed to the Curator of Manuscripts, University of Virginia Library, Charlottesville, Virginia 22901. References and citations in scholarly works should be to the Jefferson Papers, University of Virginia Library, as well as to the individual item. In addition, there should be a citation to this edition: University of Virginia Library Microfilm Publication No. 9. If a discussion of the sources in the author's work includes short title citations, the author may use an abbreviated citation.

Exceptions to the above include public records in the Virginia State Library and in the county court houses, which are public property. These institutional holdings are noted on the guidecards at the bottom of the first frame for each item on the film. Similarly, other institutional holdings are so noted, and requests for permission to publish should be addressed to those institutions directly.

The Collection

PROVENANCE

The order in which Jefferson maintained his papers at Monticello survived only a few years after his death. Disarrangement by biographers, editors, and the institutions and family members upon whom care of the papers devolved during the nineteenth century resulted in the destruction of almost every vestige of the original order. That order may only be surmised from scattered evidence and approximated, never reconstructed in detail, no matter how great the editorial diligence with which the original order might be pursued.

Jefferson is known to have placed his papers in order by categories of the divisions of his affairs to which they pertained. An incomplete listing exists of the contents of six of his "presses" or filing cabinets, in the hand of his secretary, Nicholas Trist, presumably made in Trist's capacity as trustee of Jefferson's estate after his death (see n. d., FC-3159 on film). This listing shows that Jefferson kept his papers in drawers or bundles on shelves, dividing them into those public in nature and those private. His public correspondence was in combined chronological and alphabetical arrangement by the periods of his public service, while his private correspondence was alphabetical by correspondent. Numerous separate categories existed for reports, opinions, drafts, notes, accounts, deed papers, and trust papers.

This arrangement apparently survived virtually intact until the first major skewing of the papers at the hands of the Congressional library committee and its agent, Henry A. Washington, after purchase by Congress of the bulk of the papers in 1848. Later ministrations only worsened the division and disarrangement. Presently, most institutional orderings of the papers from that original fond are rigidly chronological, sometimes within series more or less artificial in nature. That situation is likely to prevail, because it probably suits the convenience of librarians, historians, and editors better than the more personal but irrecoverable arrangement that Jefferson had worked out.

The University of Virginia entered upon the deliberate collection of Jefferson papers only in the present century, long after some other institutions and individuals had taken an interest in their preservation. A small collection, mainly archival in nature, had accumulated in the Rotunda, the central University of Virginia building which Jefferson had designed as the library. This collection was reasonably well housed after 1913, when special cases were secured for that purpose. An inventory in 1928-1929 showed that the University's Jefferson collection then amounted to only 175 manuscripts and 111 photostatic copies. By 1934 the Jefferson collection numbered 634 items, and growth thereafter was steady as items were located in previously unorganized collections, and new collections were secured by the University.

The official University archives form the core collection of around fourteen percent of the total Jefferson holdings. It is not known when and how most of these items passed into the keeping of the Library, although it is surmised that many were transferred at some point from the Board of Visitors, and that many others were among the proctor's papers (the University's chief financial officer in the early years) transferred from the bursar's office. A rough sort of provenance has been established retrospectively over some 350 such items, clearly archival in nature but not otherwise accounted for. These were divided by office of origin into some 240 items from the Board of Visitors (Acc. 211-1) and some 110 items from the bursar's office (Acc. 2737-a). Most of the remainder are known definitely to have been among the proctor's papers (Acc. 2737). Remaining items of unknown provenance are included in Acc. 38-183-a, 38-628, 38-740, 38-754, 38-755, 38-756, 38-757.

The greatest single jump in the size of the collection came in 1942, with the deposit of a large group of Edgehill-Randolph family papers (Acc. 1397). Subsequently purchased by the University, this collection was augmented in 1957 by another deposit from the same source (Acc. 5533). Together with a host of ancillary collections which may be traced back to the same fond, given or deposited over the years by family members and others,* the Edgehill-Randolph papers today make up more than a third of the University's Jefferson holdings. Not all of these were among Jefferson's own papers; many are transcripts later made by secretaries and various family members from the original documents, some of which are presently in other collections. But their bulk constitutes the residue of the great collection amassed by Jefferson himself, and subsequently dispersed among the Library of Congress, the Massachusetts Historical Society, and other institutions including the University of Virginia.

Other collections of family papers have yielded numbers of Jefferson documents varying from a single item to a score, chiefly copies that Jefferson sent to various recipients. These donations and deposits began with the Lee family papers (Acc. 38-112), the University's first known manuscript collection, given around 1832. Jefferson items are drawn as well from the following family collections: Berkeley (Acc. 38-113), Bland-Ruffin (Acc. 3026), Bonnycastle (Acc. 4106), Breckenridge (Acc. 38-588), Bruce (Acc.

*Ancillary Edgehill-Randolph collections include the following accessions: 38-130, 38-174, 38-584, 38-746, 38-747, 171, 186-a, 1683, 2143, 2873, 2958, -b, 4757-d, 5156-a, 5214, 5262, 5291, 5385-n, -s, -t, -u, -ag, 5422, 5832, -a, 7803-b, 8937, 9090-a, 9828, -a.

2692), Cabell (Acc. 38-111, 201, 2529, 2791), Carr-Cary (Acc. 1231, 6425), Cocke (Acc. 640, 1480, 3184), Dinsmore (Acc. 5869), Duke (Acc. 6286), Eppes (Acc. 38-576, 501, 1115-a, 3509-a, 5385-o), Garrett (Acc. 860), Grinnan (Acc. 2118), Higginbotham (Acc. 3330), George Jefferson (Acc. 1633), Wilson Cary Nicholas (Acc. 2343), Page-Walker (Acc. 3098), Trist (Acc. 38-414-a), and James Wood (Acc. 4562).

Numerous items of Jeffersoniana have been contributed through institutional and individual collectors. Within the special collections of the University Library, these include the Tracy W. McGregor Library (Acc. 38-760, 123, 564, 5622) and the Clifton Waller Barrett Library of American Literature (Acc. 2845, 3360, 3635, 3707, 4610, 5354, 5712), as well as the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation, a frequent depositor.* Individual benefactors include William A. Clark, Jr. (Acc. 38-163, -a, -b, 38-285, 38-590, 180), Robert C. Taylor (Acc. 201), Edward R. Stettinius, Jr. (Acc. 2723-m, 3015), and others (Acc. 38-745, 3449, 7289-b). A special category of printed Jeffersoniana has been included from the Rare Book Department, comprising works dedicated to Jefferson by hand, and those inscribed or annotated by him (Acc. 10193 and various other numbers). Many of the above items were purchased through dealers, and their original provenance is uncertain.

From the foregoing, it should be apparent to the user that the University of Virginia Jefferson papers are heterogeneous in origin if not in nature. The best guide to their original provenance is the annotation or docketing that Jefferson himself placed on each item that he retained for his own files. These endorsements have been filmed and noted where they exist, and they constitute the best proof available that the items to which they are affixed were once parts of the main collection retained by their author and his descendants. Accession numbers are included on the guidecards which accompany each item on the film, and the University welcomes further inquiries regarding the provenance of particular collections from which these items were drawn.

OTHER COLLECTIONS

Some 40,000 original Jefferson documents are concentrated in the collections of a dozen major research institutions in the United States. Additional documents may be found dispersed in repositories throughout the Western world, in many private hands, and in dealers' sale and auction catalog listings, often reproduced in facsimile. A major editorial effort to collect and collate the texts of copies of all known Jefferson documents goes forward at Princeton University, under the editorship since 1943 of Julian P. Boyd. Nineteen of a projected sixty volumes of The Papers of Thomas Jefferson have appeared since 1950. Slip indexes of the Princeton control files are available on microfilm for the guidance of scholars.

The major collections and their institutional finding aids and sponsored publications are listed below. Citations are made to the National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections (NUCMC), a serial compilation to which North American institutions report their holdings. Library of Congress repository symbols for each institution are also given, for the benefit of those who may wish to use this guide as a partial key to the Princeton microfilm indexes.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS (DLC). Manuscript Division. Washington, D. C. Thomas Jefferson Papers. ca. 25,000 items. Microfilm edition, 65 rolls in nine series. Accompanied by printed Index to the Thomas Jefferson Papers (Washington, 1976). Older finding aids, still useful, include: Department of State, Calendar of the Correspondence of Thomas Jefferson. Part I, Letters from Jefferson. Part II, Letters to Jefferson. Part III, Supplementary. 3 vols. BIBLIOGRAPHICAL AIDS

The extraordinary textual interest Jefferson's papers hold for posterity derives largely from his towering eminence in American historiography as the apostle of liberty and democracy, and from his writings taken as creed. This concern was manifested as early as 1829, with publication by Thomas Jefferson Randolph of a four-volume edition of his grandfather's papers, the first collection ever published of an American president's correspondence and writings. All subsequent editions of Jefferson's writings have demonstrated this concern in some measure, most notably the comprehensive Princeton letterpress edition begun in 1943, the bicentennial of Jefferson's birth, in the midst of a global war to preserve democracy.

So much of the Jefferson manuscript corpus is in print in one form or another that it is believed useful to provide a survey of printed editions for comparative purposes. These may be divided in checklist form into standard editions, larger works, selected editions, and special editions. A section of further sources on the provenance of Jefferson's manuscripts in general is provided at the end. This section includes those biographical works of greatest usefulness as guides to Jefferson papers.

COMPREHENSIVE STANDARD EDITIONS of Jefferson's writings are as follows, in order by date of publication:

Randolph, Thomas Jefferson (ed.), Memoir, Correspondence, and Miscellanies, from the Papers of Thomas Jefferson, 4 vols. (Charlottesville, Virginia, and London, 1829; 2nd ed. Boston, 1830).

Washington, Henry A. (ed.), The Writings of Thomas Jefferson. . . ., 10 vols. (New York and Washington, "Congressional Edition," 1853-1855).

Ford, Paul L. (ed.), The Writings of Thomas Jefferson, 10 vols. (New York, "Letterpress Edition," 1892-1899; reissued as the "Federal Edition," 12 vols., 1904-1905).

Lipscomb, Andrew A., and Albert E. Bergh (eds.), The Writings of Thomas Jefferson, 20 vols. (Washington, "Memorial Edition," 1903-1904; reissued several times).

Boyd, Julian P., and others (eds.), The Papers of Thomas Jefferson, 19 vols. to date (Princeton, 1950-).

LARGER WORKS by Jefferson himself, or those which have been issued separately in monograph form, include the following, with emphasis on the more accessible modern editions:

Abernethy, Thomas P. (ed.), A Summary View of the Rights of British America, by Thomas Jefferson. . . . (New York, 1943, orig. pub. 1774).

AIDS TO PROVENANCE form almost a literature unto themselves, bearing on various aspects of the origins, descent, and state of organization of Jefferson's papers to the present day. These aids include the standard modern biographies of Malone and Peterson, and older works by Randall and Sarah Nicholas Randolph, which themselves constitute partial editions of Jefferson papers. They also include essays in some of the editions cited above.

The definitive account of the provenance of manuscripts relating to Thomas Jefferson remains to be written. Its accomplishment must doubtless await the completion of the comprehensive edition of Jefferson papers underway at Princeton. In the meantime, careful students of Jefferson's writings would be well advised to familiarize themselves with the foregoing accounts.

FILMING PLAN

The basic character of the University's Jefferson papers may be determined from the published calendar and from the correspondent index at the end of this guide. Accordingly, no detailed statement of contents is set forth in the guide. For purposes of filming, the documents in the two separate chronological sections of the calendar have been combined into a single chronology, along with documents not included in the published calendar. This combined chronological arrangement was then separated into three series for filming purposes: a drawings series, a special series, and a main series. The filming order is indicated below.

EDITORIAL PROCEDURE

The photographic processes used for the microfilming were accomplished in a manner and on microfilm which meet the recommended requirements of the National Bureau of Standards for permanent microphotographic reproduction. A flexible filming format was chosen in the I- and II-B positions at a basic reduction ratio of 12:1. It was felt that this format represented the best combination available for user understanding of document sequence, balanced against film economy. In view of the already elaborate calendar, accession, and Nichols checklist numberings employed, frame numbers are omitted as superfluous and potentially confusing. Some larger documents are filmed at reduction ratios up to 21:1, and some are filmed in sections. All are appropriately targeted, and each frame on the film bears an inch/centimeter scale to enable the user to determine the size of the original document.

The only documents routinely excluded from the film were photocopies in place of which the originals were subsequently secured for filming. Modern transcripts are included only as aids to legibility. Duplicate states of the same document are numerous, and all are filmed for the variations in text and docketing that they frequently contain, as well as for the clues to provenance that they present. The only other calendared items excluded from the film, besides those few for which reproduction permission was specifically denied, are the copies of the Board of Visitors minutes (TB-1517) belonging to Cabell, Cocke, and Breckenridge; and the three scrapbooks (FC-3172) bearing clippings pasted by descendants onto lettercovers addressed to Jefferson.

Documents misdated in the calendar are filmed in their correct chronological order, with targets in the place of the incorrect dates. A number of combined calendar entries have been itemized to clarify provenance or chronological sequence. Listings for these have been filmed at the date under which the items were originally calendared. Datings proceed from the more specific to the less, as in the following examples: [ante 1822 Dec. 20]; 1822 Dec. 20]; [post 1822 Dec. 20]; 1822 Dec. 31; 1822 Dec.; 1822; [1822]; [1822?]; [ca. 1822]; [1822-1823]; 1822-1826; [post 1822]; n. d.

A typed guidecard is filmed at the bottom of the first frame of each item. This guidecard bears basic information on the dates, correspondents, physical states, accession and calendar numbers, and status of ownership of the originals. Supplied information on dates and names is indicated by brackets. Abbreviations used on the guidecards are listed in the explanation of symbols which precedes the index. The information on the guidecards does not include the abstracts of contents which appear in the published calendar entries. It does include indications of previous enclosures where these enclosures could be determined by a comparison of originals.

Entries in the correspondent index are considerably simpler than those on the guidecards. They proceed alphabetically by the last name of the writer or writers of a document to Jefferson, or the person addressed by him. Entries for Jefferson himself occur only when a document was not meant for another, or when an intended recipient could not be determined. Items that do not bear Jefferson's name may be assumed to bear his endorsement or have some other close connection with him. From considerations of space, index entries bear initials of first names only. Full names are supplied on the guidecards with the items.

When two or more calendar numbers are given for the same item in the index, they may be assumed to represent duplicate states of the same document. When one of these is listed as not filmed, it is either because that item is an exact photocopy of the original which is filmed in place of the copy, or because permission has been denied for its reproduction. Unless an item is designated as part of the drawings series or the special series, it may be found in the main series. All items transferred to the drawings series and the special series have been targeted appropriately in their correct chronological order on the microfilm in the main series.

It is hoped that all these measures taken together will render the University's Jefferson papers as fully and conveniently accessible to users as possible, in as straight-forward a format as may be devised compatible with the unavoidable complexities of a heterogeneous collection.

EXPLANATION OF SYMBOLS

- I. The following standard manuscripts abbreviations will be used on the guidecards and in the index:

D	document	N	note, memorandum
l.	leaf	r.	recto (front side)
Ms	manuscript	v.	verso (back side)

 - A. Items written in the hand of the author or sender will include in the abbreviated description the prefix letter "A" for "autograph," as with AD ("autograph document"), AL, AMs, AN. Typewritten items will bear the prefix letter "T," as with TL, TMs, etc.
 - B. Items bearing signatures of author or sender will include in the abbreviated description the suffix letter "S," as with ADS ("autograph document, signed"), ALS, AMsS, ANS, DS, LS, MsS, NS. A signature may be in the body or at the close of a document, full or initialed.
 - C. Plurals will be indicated by a numerical prefix, as:
2 ALS, 4 AD, 3 AMs, 10 p. on 5 l.
- II. Certain additional abbreviations will be employed to indicate the physical state in which a document exists in the departmental files:

DFT	draft	LPC	letterpress copy
DPL	duplicate	MFC	microfilm copy
ESC	electrostatic copy	PGC	polygraph copy
EXT	extract	PSC	photostatic copy
FC	file copy	TR	transcript
FRG	fragment	TTR	typed transcript

There will be no separate symbol for a recipient's copy. Unless designated as a file copy, letterpress copy, polygraph copy, or draft, an original document may be assumed to be the recipient's copy.
- III. A number of standard descriptive notations are also abbreviated in the index and on guidecards, as follows:

A	ante (before)
Acc.	Library accession number

ADD	additional items not included in published calendar or supplement
Arch. Trans.	archival transfer from University offices to Library
Bd. of Vis.	Board of Visitors, University of Virginia
C or ca.	circa (approximately)
(d. r.)	date received
Encl.:	enclosure
End.:	endorsed or docketed by . . .
FC-	Freudenberg-Casteen calendar supplement number
Miscal.:	Miscalendared as . . .
N-	Nichols architectural drawing checklist number
Orig. encl.:	originally enclosed with . . .
P	post (after)
Pres. cop.	presentation copy of printed work
TB-	Thurlow-Berkeley calendar number
T. J.	Thomas Jefferson
