Among the records of civil rights cases are those concerning school desegregation, such as Catherine Batiste v. Acadia Parish School Board, Joann Graham v. Evangeline Parish School Board, Lawrence Hall v. St. Helena Parish School Board, and Donald Jarome Thomas v. West Baton Rouge Parish School Board; those concerning teacher salary equalization, such as Malcolm S. LaCarde v. East Baton Rouge Parish School Board, *Eula Mae Lee v. There are also records of cases concerning the desegregation of state universities, colleges, and trade schools, such as Samuel Allen v. Louisiana State Board of Education, Priscilla Angel v. Louisiana State Board of Education, Daryl Foister v. Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors, and Alexander Pierre Tureaud, Jr. v. Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors. Also included are records of State of Louisiana v. National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a suit aimed at destroying the state NAACP through membership disclosure laws and records of Bryan Poindexter v. Louisiana Financial Assistance Corporation, which involved state aid to private, racially segregated academies.

Having practiced law in Louisiana for almost half a century, Tureaud led a varied life as reflected in the scope and magnitude of the collection. Following Tureaud's own method of organization, the collection is divided into different series, each one revealing various aspects of the man who was a dominant leader in the civil rights movement in Louisiana. There are eleven series in all. They include papers about the Knights of Peter Claver, other insurance firms, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, politics, the Louisiana Education Association, civil rights cases in other states, non-civil rights cases and miscellaneous material, collected historical material, and other collected items.

The Knights of Peter Claver, the subject of the first series, is a black Roman Catholic fraternal organization that, among other functions, provides life insurance benefits for its members. Tureaud, a member of Corpus Christi Council No. 60, was elected by the Order as its first National Advocate, serving in the post off and on for nineteen years. He also served as National Secretary from 1953-1954 and was a candidate for Supreme Knight many times. As National Advocate, Tureaud handled the settlement of insurance claims and helped to get the Order certified in several states to issue insurance policies. The Knights of Peter Claver correspondence (1932-1964) consists mostly of letters from the Depression and war years. Though most of the correspondence concerns insurance claims and internal organization, there are a few items within the series that shed light on black social life in Louisiana during the period. For example, in a letter of December 11, 1933, Louis Israel, the Order's Supreme Knight at the time, wrote to Tureaud claiming that some New Deal agencies discriminated against blacks. In his reply, Tureaud maintained that the federal government was doing all it could to insure racial equality within its programs at the time.

In addition to correspondence, other material may be found within the Knights of Peter Claver series. Among these are minutes, such as those of the National Council (1909-1921), which give a clear picture of the early days of the Order; the Supreme Conclave of the Fourth Degree (August 5, 1946, and July 30, 1955); the Board of Directors (1951-1958), which provide a glimpse into decision-making within the Order; the Louisiana State Conference (1955-1963); and the Claver Building Committee (May 8, 1955, and July 3, 1959), which explain the acquisition of the former French Hospital to serve as the Peter Claver Building. Following the minutes are various reports made to the Order. Among these are reports of the National Advocate (1934-1956), which were yearly summaries of Tureaud's activities as the Order's official attorney; the "Report of the Constitution Revision Committee" (July 1937); the "Special Report on Transactions in the Glapion Affair" (August 3, 1940), detailing the circumstances surrounding the embezzlement of Death Benefits (June 27, 1957); and the "Report on a Meeting to Plan and Prepare 'Manifesto on the Social Apostolate in the South' to be Issued by a Select Group of Catholic Leaders" (n.d.).

Following the reports are constitutions of the Ladies Auxiliary and the Junior Knights of Peter Claver; the "Revised Constitution of the National Court of the Junior Daughters of Peter Claver"; the "Compilation of Laws and Amendments Enacted by National Conventions" (1949-1955); the Louisiana State Conference Constitution; resolutions; financial reports and statements, including those of the Ladies Auxiliary (July 1, 1943-June 30, 1944, and June 1, 1945-June 30, 1946); legal documents pertaining to the Order's insurance obligations; copies of The Claverite (January 1940; May-June, 1955; May-June, 1956; July-August, 1958; December 1959; March-April 1960; May-June 1960; January-February 1972; March-April 1972); bulletins and press releases; an inventory of the French Hospital at the time of its purchase by the Order; and forms and applications.

The second series in the collection, containing twenty-five folders, concerns Tureaud's involvement in other insurance companies, including the Pyramid Life and Accident Insurance Company, and various legal documents pertaining to the insurance industry.

The third series, which along with the records of the civil rights cases constitutes the heart of the collection, covers Tureaud's forty-four years with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Tureaud served as an attorney for the NAACP and also held other offices in the organization, including the Presidency of the Louisiana Conference of Branches. The correspondence in this series does not contain items from specific cases, because they are found with the cases themselves. The bulk of this correspondence originated in the 1940s and early 1950s and gives a clear picture of the internal workings of the organization, especially within Louisiana. There are also scores of letters concerning individual civil rights violations for which little legal action could be taken. Of particular interest is correspondence concerning the treatment of black soldiers in the South during the Second World War. Tureaud helped to defend Pvt. Leroy McGary, a young black accused of riot and mutiny, and assisted other black soldiers throughout the course of the war.

Non-correspondence items include memoranda of case lists (1942-1970), which reported to attorneys the current status of civil rights cases throughout the country; minutes of meetings, including those of the Southwest Regional Advisory Board (March 12, 1948), the Louisiana Conference (1947-1954), and the Executive Board (1954); and different NAACP reports, such as those of the Southwest Region (1947-1949), the New Orleans Branch (1942-1943 and 1944-1945), and the Louisiana Conference Five Year Plan (1950-1954). There also are reports and reprinted articles on aspects of the civil rights movement and civil liberties. Among those reports are "Attitude of Student Bodies at Tulane and LSU (to Segregation)" (ca. 1947), "Statement of Policy and Objectives: NAACP Civil Rights Committee" (1949), "Cases of Police Brutality Appearing in the Louisiana Weekly in New Orleans in 1949," "Eye of the Storm" (May 7, 1960), and "A Study of Some Tangible Inequalities of the New Orleans Public Schools" (1959-1963). Other non-correspondence items include the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund Monthly Reports (1954-1970); the Civil Liberties Docket (1955-1964); speeches and statements, including speeches by Tureaud, Wayne L. Morse, and John Hope Franklin; affidavits on civil rights violations (1943-1964); NAACP News Letters and Releases (1945-1965); financial information; constitutions and by-laws for branches and for the Louisiana State Conference; resolutions of various NAACP conferences and meetings (1948-1952); a petition to the Orleans Parish School Board concerning desegregation (1963); programs (1930-1970); pamphlets; copies of various black magazines, such as The Civic Leader (1929-1930), The Negro American (July, 1931), and The Southern Patriot (May, 1965 and September, 1966); and racist pamphlets that Tureaud collected over the years.

The fourth series reflects Tureaud's involvement in politics throughout the course of his life. He served as co-organizer and vice president of the New Orleans Federation of Civic Leagues, organized and served as president of the Eighth Ward Civic League, and, in 1949, became one of the founders of the Orleans Parish Progressive Voters' League. The correspondence (1944-1967) in this series touches upon Tureaud's activity at the state and national as well as the local level. Also found in this series is material on Pelican State Democratic Club; the "Round Robin" political organization; and the Orleans Parish Progressive Voters' League, including the League's parish, state, and national constitutions, reports, agendas, minutes, and voting lists. At the end of the series are reports on various political activities, such as National Democratic Committee Reports (1956); financial information on the Kennedy-Johnson Voters' League of Louisiana; material about the Johnson-Humphrey Statewide Voters' Committee, for which Tureaud served as co-chairman; and miscellaneous voting lists and sample ballots.

The Louisiana Education Association (LEA), the black teachers' organization, is the topic under which the fifth series is arranged. Tureaud served the Association as its attorney for more than twenty-five years. Correspondence (1943-1971) in this series consists mostly of an exchange of letters between Tureaud and J. K. Haynes, the LEA's Executive Secretary. Most of the reports contained in the series concern subjects of interest to black educators, such as "Trends in the Elimination of Differentials between White and Negro Education" and the "Report of the Committee on Goals and Objective of the Louisiana Education Association." Also included in this series are minutes (1950-1963), financial information, a constitution, incorporation papers, programs, newsletters, pamphlets, and a few copies of The Journal, the LEA's monthly publication.

Other Materials is the title of the sixth series within the collection. The correspondence in this series (1925-1972) derives mainly from Tureaud's law practice other than in civil rights cases and his interests as a businessman. There are a few items in the correspondence concerning Tureaud's efforts to become a Louisiana notary public. Aside from the correspondence in this series there are American Jewish Congress Newsletters (1962-1965); material on the Louisiana Commission on Human Relations, Rights, and Responsibilities, including correspondence (1965-1968), minutes (1965-1967), a constitution, guidelines, and a "Statement on Nature and Purpose" (October 7, 1965); Autocrat Club correspondence and bulletins (1927-1950); reports and reprints of articles concerning the legal profession; files on the Reginald Rouzan Loyalty case; Tureaud family financial information, such as cancelled checks and receipts; and material pertaining to the Bell Petroleum Company.

The largest series in the collection comprises legal documents of cases in Louisiana and related records. The cases are arranged alphabetically by parish. Within each parish they generally are arranged alphabetically by the name of the plaintiff, except where there are related suits. For example, Clifford E. Davis v. East Baton Rouge Parish School Board is followed by its countersuit East Baton Rouge Parish School Board v. Clifford E. Davis. Although arrangement of the documents within the cases varies, they are generally arranged according to the following order: correspondence, the complaint, the answer, briefs, motions, memoranda, orders, the opinion, and the appeal. Many of the desegregation suits were consolidated with other desegregation suits and share common legal documents such as briefs and motions. An index to the consolidated legal documents, arranged alphabetically by parishes and showing the location of documents that pertain to more than one case, may be found following the shelf list in the register. For example, looking in this index under Catherine Batiste v. Acadia Parish School Board, one can see that a Brief of Plaintiffs pertaining to this case can be found within Alfreda Trahan v. Lafayette Parish School Board (Roll 30, box 40, folder 2).

The civil rights cases against state institutions, such as Alexander Pierre Tureaud Jr. v. Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors, are arranged alphabetically by the name of the plaintiff following the last parish case. The arrangement of legal documents within the state cases follows the same pattern as those of the parish cases.

There are also civil rights cases from other states that were sent to Tureaud in order to keep him abreast of civil rights litigation around the country. They are arranged in the eighth series by state and within each state by the name of the plaintiffs. In most instances, only the title of the case is given. The exceptions to this are two cases in Mississippi, Gladys Noel Bates v. John C. Batte, President, Jackson Separated School District and Derek Jerome Singleton v. Jackson Municipal School District, in which Tureaud was one of the attorneys of record.

The tenth series consists of historical material that Tureaud collected as co-founder and president of the local Archives of Negro History. The items are arranged in chronological order and include such things as a signed envelope for the will of Christoval de Armas (August 14, 1798), the Constitution de la Society Catholique Pour l'Instruction des Orphelins dans l'Indigence (June 20, 1849), and "Le Jardinier Economique et Productif de la Louisiane."
