Harvey Williams Cushing, 1869-1939

Born in Cleveland, Ohio, Harvey Williams Cushing was the youngest of the ten children of Henry Kirke Cushing and Betsey Maria Williams Cushing. The family had a medical tradition with four generations of physicians including Cushing's father and brother.

Cushing is widely known as the greatest neurosurgeon of the twentieth century. He is credited with creating the field of brain surgery as a surgical discipline and established many medical procedures considered commonplace today including the use of sutures to control bleeding, the use of x-rays to diagnose patients, and the monitoring of blood pressure during surgery.

Cushing began his schooling by attending local schools in Cleveland. He attended Yale College and was graduated with a B.A. in 1891. He entered Harvard Medical School that fall and completed his M.D. and Master of Arts degrees in 1895. While still in medical school, Cushing developed with his classmate E. A. Codman, the "ether charts," on which pulse, respiration, and subsequently, blood pressure were plotted, enabling the surgeon to gauge the patient's condition throughout the operation.

Cushing began his career as an intern in surgery at the Massachusetts General Hospital in 1895-96. He moved to Baltimore in 1896 to work at the Johns Hopkins Hospital where he stayed for 15 years, mostly at the Faculty of Surgery. He worked under the direction of Sir William Osler, William H. Welch, William Halstead, and Howard A. Kelly. It was Halstead who greatly influenced Cushing's surgical skills by his own meticulous surgical technique. On the recommendation of Osler and Welch, Cushing spent the year of 1900-1901 abroad. He went first to England, where Osler introduced him to Victor Horsley, the founder of neurosurgery. He spent six months in Bern working with the physiologist Hugo Kronecker and with the surgeon Theodor Kocher on problems on intracranial pressure and cerebral circulation.

Early in 1901 he went to Italy and worked for a month in the laboratory of Angelo Mosso, the eminent altitude physiologist. At Pavia he saw the blood pressure apparatus of Scipione Riva-Rocci and succeeded in obtaining a replica of it to bring back to the United States.

Upon his return to Baltimore in the summer of 1901, Cushing began a general surgical practice but gradually directed his attention more and more exclusively, first to the surgery of the pituitary gland and later to the many other types of neurological surgery. Cushing's early operations for brain tumors were disappointing. However, in February 1910, he successfully removed a tumor from the right parietal hemisphere of General Leonard Wood. This operation on one of the most influential figures of his time did much for Cushing's reputation as a neurological surgeon.

In 1912, he returned to Harvard as Professor of Surgery and also worked at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital (1913-1932). During World War I, Cushing took one of the early volunteer groups from Harvard to work at the Ambulance American at Neuilly, France. He organized Base Hospital No. 5, a large army medical unit which served the British and American forces. During the winter of 1917, Cushing operated almost incessantly. On the basis of his experiences, he published a classic paper on wartime injuries of the brain.

Early in his career, Dr. Cushing authored "The Pituitary Body and Its Disorders" which brought him instant recognition. He described "Cushing's Syndrome," which is caused by hyperactivity of the cortex of the adrenal glands. He was also known as a medical historian and is recognized as the biographer of Sir William Osler. The Life of Sir William Osler was published in 1925 and won a Pulitzer Prize.

Some of Cushing's most important publications appeared during the period between 1925 and the time of his formal retirement in 1932. These included A Classification of the Tumors of the Glioma Group, Studies in Intracranial Physiology and Surgery, Tumors Arising from the Blood-Vessels of the Brain, Intracranial Tumors, and Papers Relating to the Pituitary Body, Hypothalamus and Parasympathetic Nervous System.

After his retirement from Harvard, he became Professor of Neurology at Yale, a position he held from 1933 to 1937. During this period, he wrote a number of works including a condensation of his war diary, From a Surgeon's Journal, 1915-1918, illustrated with his own photographs and pencil sketches; Meningiomas, in collaboration with his associate Dr. Louise Eisenhardt; his last group of essays, and a bio-bibliography of Andreas Vesalius.

He bequeathed his extensive collection of rare medical and scientific books to Yale. He also persuaded various friends to give their collections, and in this manner, the Medical Historical Library came into existence as a wing of the new Yale Medical Library in June 1941.

In June 1902, he married Katharine Stone Crowell with whom he had five children: William Harvey, Mary Benedict, Betsey, Henry Kirke and Barbara. He died on October 7, 1939 in New Haven, Connecticut.

Introduction

The Harvey Williams Cushing Papers are composed of correspondence, subject files, writings, family papers, artifacts, and writings about Harvey Cushing. The papers document the personal life and professional career of a medical giant and pioneer neurosurgeon. They reveal Cushing as a doctor, teacher, soldier, administrator, bibliophile, and scientist, whose diverse achievements are important to the histories of the Harvard Medical School, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, and the Yale University Medical School and Library, as well as to the history of brain surgery.

The papers document Cushing's activities in various professional organizations, his research and writing, particularly on brain tumors and on Sir William Osler, and his book collecting. The papers include a large correspondence with prominent physicians, medical educators and administrators, Cushing's classmates, students, assistants, patients, World War I colleagues, and book dealers, librarians, and book collectors. The papers also relate to the history of the Cushing family, who were early settlers in the Western Reserve of Ohio. Cushing family members served in the Civil War and the family included four generations of physicians.

On his death in 1939, Harvey Williams Cushing left his invaluable historical medical collection of published volumes and unpublished manuscripts to the Yale Medical Library to form, with the libraries of his friends Arnold Klebs and John Fulton, the Yale Medical Historical Library. Along with this library he left his personal and professional papers, family papers, numerous drawings, photographs, and artifacts. The Yale Medical Historical Library issued a short-title catalogue, The Harvey Cushing Collection of Books and Manuscripts (New York: Schuman's, 1943), to describe this vast collection.

Between 1980 and 1989, the Medical Historical Library transferred the bulk of Harvey Cushing's personal, professional and family papers to Manuscripts and Archives. The Medical Historical Library retained the bound volumes of Cushing's personal and professional papers including his diary, as well as published volumes of Cushing's books, biographies of Cushing, and other printed material relating to Cushing.

Each repository treats its Cushing holdings as a complete collection and has catalogued them as such in the Research Libraries Information Network database. For ease of description here, the papers held in Manuscripts and Archives (Manuscript Group Number 160) are designated as Part I, while Part II refers to the papers held in the Medical Historical Library.

ARRANGEMENT AND DESCRIPTION OF THE PAPERS AND MICROFILM

The microfilm collection was filmed from two departments within the Yale University Library—Manuscripts and Archives and the Medical Historical Library. The material is arranged in four series with "part" designations indicating from which department the material was filmed. "Part I" indicates the Manuscripts and Archives and "Part II" indicates the Medical Historical Library. Not all series were filmed at both libraries.

Series I, Correspondence has only a Part I and includes files of incoming and outgoing letters arranged alphabetically by the correspondent's name. Series II, Special Files, Parts I and II, contains correspondence along with notes, photographs, clippings, and other types of published material, arranged alphabetically by subject. This series also includes the volumes of Cushing's diaries, scrapbooks, and medical school notebooks, with loose correspondence and other material interleaved.

Manuscripts and published copies of Cushing's books, published and unpublished papers, lectures, and clinic notes, are arranged in Series III, Writings, Parts I and II. Correspondence of family members, not addressed to or from Harvey Cushing, and photographs of and writings by other family members are arranged in Series IV, Family Papers, Part I.

Series Descriptions

CORRESPONDENCE

Series I (Part I)

Rolls 1-55

Dates: 1884-1939

Series I, Part I composed of most, though not all of Harvey Cushing's incoming and outgoing letters. The series includes exchanges with physicians from around the world, scholars and students of medical history, bibliophiles and librarians, publishers and editors of both medical and popular books and journals, classmates and colleagues from Yale University, Harvard Medical School, and Johns Hopkins University, and family members. While the series includes letters dating from Cushing's student days and early teaching career, the bulk of the letters date from after Cushing's return to the United States following his service in World War I.

The series is arranged alphabetically by personal or corporate name. The contents of individual files have, for the most part, been left as Cushing and his staff created them. If five or more items of one individual are present in the series, they have been foldered together and listed separately in the folder listing. All other correspondence in the series has been arranged in folders labeled according to alphabetical divisions. Files of unidentified letters are arranged at the end of the series.

The files include correspondence between Cushing and the named correspondent. They may also contain exchanges with the correspondent's spouse or children, letters of inquiry or recommendation concerning the correspondent, and letters concerning memorials or other tributes following the death of the individual. The series, however, does not include all correspondence of the named individual. Correspondence which Cushing kept for reference in subject files will be found in Series II. Cross-references direct the researcher to these additional sources.

Transcripts of letters and occasionally notes about letters are present in the files. These seem to have been created by Madeline Stanton (Cushing's secretary and later librarian of the Medical Historical Library) in her work with the files or by John Fulton during his research on his biography of Cushing. Other additions to the files include gifts of original Cushing letters, presented by the recipients, to the Cushing Papers.

The correspondence documents all phases of Cushing's professional career. The earliest materials in the series are Cushing's exchanges with his parents Betsey Maria Williams and Henry Kirke Cushing. More of Cushing's frequent letters to his parents have survived than those from his parents to him. These letters, from New Haven, Cambridge, and Baltimore, record Cushing's undergraduate studies at Yale, his Harvard Medical School training, his early travels and study in Europe, and his years at Johns Hopkins University. The letters include Cushing's characteristic illustrations. Letters Cushing wrote to his future wife, Katherine Stone Crowell, also document his early professional training and practice, as well as experiences in Europe during World War I. Though there are letters from Cushing's teachers such as William Halsted, Sir William Osler, and Theodor Kocher, they are written to him as a colleague and not as a student.

The bulk of the correspondence in Series I, however, dates from after Cushing's move to Boston. Though Cushing joined the staff of the Harvard Medical School and the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in 1913, he very soon thereafter became involved with efforts to organize medical teams for service in World War I. The correspondence of this period is bound with the volumes of his diary for the period, stored in the Medical Historical Library. Some files, such as those for Boston associates Henry Christian, W. T. Councilman, John Homans, Walter Cannon, and David Edsall, do contain references to Cushing's work at the the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and at Harvard University, but much more of this is included in the special files in Series II.

The files dating from after Cushing's return in 1919 are voluminous. There are numerous files for professional organizations such as the American College of Surgeons, the American Medical Association, the American Neurological Association, the American Surgical Association, the Association for the Study of Internal Secretions, the Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons, the National Academy of Sciences, the Society for Clinical Surgery, and the Society of Neurological Surgeons. Cushing served as president or board member of many of these organizations. The files document Cushing's involvement and concern over issues such as the purpose of such organizations, their publication decisions, professional standards, the training and accreditation of medical specialists, and the content of professional meetings.

Cushing's own medical research is discussed in correspondence with colleagues such as Percival Bailey, Hugh Cairns, and Louise Eisenhardt. Cushing's medical publications are the subject of correspondence with editors and publishers such as W. W. Keen, Morris Fishbein, and Charles Thomas. Much additional correspondence on Cushing's research and medical publications is included in Series II, filed under the name of the publication or under the heading "Medical Publications of Dr. Cushing."

Cushing's interests in the history of medicine and his book collecting in this field are the subjects of numerous letters. His correspondents include librarians and curators as well as fellow bibliophiles such as Maude Abbott, John Fulton, Fielding Garrison, Arnold Klebs, Leonard Mackall, Sir Charles Sherrington, Edward Streeter, Henry Viets, and William Henry Welch. Correspondents specifically involved in Cushing's research for his biography of Sir William Osler include William Francis, Archibald Malloch, Lady Grace Osler, and Sir Edward Sharpey-Schafer, though most correspondence on this work is filed in Series II.

The correspondence reflects Cushing's association with medical colleagues around the United States and abroad. These include George Crile, Eliot Cutler, Adolph Hanson, Henry Barton Jacobs, W. G. MacCallum, Charles and William Mayo, James Mumford, Ernest Sachs, William S. Thayer, and Lewis Weed in America, Otfried Foerster in Norway, Sir D'Arcy Power in England, Clovis Vincent in France, and Wilder Penfield in Canada. Correspondence with Cushing's Austrian protégé Benno Schlesinger concerns the plight of a Jewish physician trying to work under and eventually to flee from Nazi persecution. Correspondence specifically concerned with medical education is included in the files for Abraham and Simon Flexner.

The files also include more personal correspondence concerning Cushing's finances, insurance, and family affairs. There are files for Cushing's children, as well as correspondence with Franklin D. Roosevelt concerning the marriage of Cushing's daughter to Roosevelt's son. Exchanges with Lucien Pye and various members of the Williams and Cushing family concern the family's role in the history of Cleveland, Ohio and the Western Reserve. Two of Cushing's patients became his personal friends, and there are correspondence files for the explorer Sven Hedin and General Leonard Wood, which reflect this continuing relationship. Cushing's long-term friendship with his college friend Grosvenor Atterbury, whom Cushing picked to design the Yale Medical Library, is also documented in this series.

SPECIAL FILES*Series II (Part I)*Rolls 56-104*Dates: 1886-1939

This series is composed of correspondence, notes, printed material, and various other types of material, which are arranged by subject. This arrangement, created by Cushing and his staff, includes voluminous files for general topics, major themes, or long-term areas of endeavor in Cushing's career as well as smaller files documenting a specific event or concern. The files are arranged alphabetically.

Among the largest files in the series are those for the Harvard Medical School and for the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. These files are similar in nature, dating from the same years and documenting all phases of Cushing's work at these institutions. There is much administrative correspondence including exchanges with deans, board members, and staff, as well as correspondence with and about those with whom Cushing was associated. The latter includes letters concerning appointments and recommendations for students, employees, and visiting colleagues.

Similarly large files document Cushing's publications and speeches. For any particular title, the files contain correspondence concerning research and exchanges with publishers, though not the drafts and completed manuscripts, which are included in Series III. The files for The Life of Sir William Osler and Meningiomas are particularly voluminous. Under the folder heading "Medical Publications of Dr. Cushing," one will find smaller quantities of material concerning Cushing's articles. These files are divided by time periods. Materials concerning articles published in these time periods are arranged alphabetically by title.

While the subject files in Part I have relatively less material on Cushing's service during World War I than the volumes in Part II, there are a number of folders concerning the American Ambulance Hospital in Paris and Base Hospital No. 5. These include Cushing's post-war correspondence with certain members of his unit and files on the treatment of gunshot wounds to the head.

Cushing's involvement in the Committee on Economic Security is reflected in this series, as is his role on the Emergency Committee in Aid of Displaced Foreign Physicians. This series also documents Cushing's book collecting activities.

SPECIAL FILES*Series II (Part II)*Rolls 105-125*Dates: 1887-1939

This series is composed of material arranged by subject and collected in bound volumes. The volumes are arranged alphabetically by title.

Some of the volumes such as diaries, student notebooks, and scrapbooks were created by Cushing in blank volumes. Other volumes contain collected material, such as correspondence, memorabilia, clippings, photographs, and the like, bound by Cushing or, in a few instances, by John Fulton. In addition the series includes some printed volumes into which Cushing interleaved or tipped-in related correspondence, clippings, and memorabilia.

On the microfilm, the numerous loose items found interleaved throughout the volumes have been filmed following the volume in which they were found. When necessary these items have been annotated with the page number on which the item was found.

The volumes include Cushing's diaries and scrapbooks of his undergraduate years at Yale, travel and medical training in Europe, and surgical service during World War II. There are also a number of volumes which contain Cushing's class notes from courses taken at the Harvard Medical School.

Cushing's diary volumes for World War I contain photographs and correspondence, in addition to the daily narrative entries. The correspondence has not been analyzed for correspondents, but the chronologically arranged letters fill in the apparent gap for the years 1915-1918 in Series I (Part I) CORRESPONDENCE. The series also includes individual volumes containing collected letters, manuscripts, and reminiscences of Charles William Eliot, Fielding Garrison, William Stewart Halsted, Henry Lee Higginson, Arnold Klebs, Silas Weir Mitchell, Simon Newcomb, Sir William Osler, James Ford Rhodes, Sir Charles Scott Sherrington, William Henry Welch, and Leonard Wood.

Through other volumes of collected correspondence and reviews on From a Surgeon's Journal, The Life of Sir William Osler, and "Western Reserve Medical Traditions," Cushing's role as an historian and author is portrayed. Cushing, the surgeon and professor of medicine, is documented in the volumes "Johns Hopkins medical records" and "Peter Bent Brigham Hospital cases," and in the volume "Full Time," which concerns the question of the appropriateness of medical school faculty having private medical practices. Records of Cushing's calls from several institutions to various teaching positions are in the volume on University and Hospital Appointments.

WRITINGS

Series III (Part II)

Rolls 126-134

Dates: 1898-1940

This series is composed of the published volumes of Cushing's books, volumes of collected printed and reprinted copies of Cushing's articles, and additional loose copies of articles by Cushing. The writings are arranged as they appear in A Bibliography of Writings of Harvey Cushing, with books and monographs listed first followed by copies of Cushing's addresses, papers, and reports.

Each title is identified with the same number as appears in the bibliography. The listing here does not include the complete bibliographic citation, but a copy of the bibliography is included in the papers and on roll 126 of the microfilm. Not all books and monographs in the bibliography are included in the papers; most of the missing volumes represent different printings of a title for which at least one version is already present.

Some books and monographs included in the papers are Cushing's personal copies and contain his annotations and items of related correspondence and printed material tipped in. In the microfilm edition, only volumes bearing significant annotations were filmed in their entirety. In other cases only the unique material in the volume has been filmed.

Volumes containing Cushing's addresses, papers, and reports are arranged following the books and monographs. The title on these volumes is "Reprints," but the term "reprint" is misleading. For any particular title the volumes may include the work as it was first published, a reprint from this publication, the title as it was reissued elsewhere, or a reprint from the reissue, but the volumes include only one version of any title. Each volume includes a table of contents listing the titles as they appear in the volume. The arrangement is chronological. These volumes have been filmed in their entirety, including text and all tipped in and interleaved items.

In some instances the table of contents will include a title but note that it was not bound into the volume, possibly for reasons of size. Since the Cushing Papers do include copies of these writings, these texts have been inserted on the microfilm where they would appear had they been bound into the volume.

Because Cushing's writings were frequently reprinted or reissued after the initial publication, the papers include a number of these additional copies. They appear in the listing at the end of the series under the heading: Additional Printed Copies of Cushing's Writings. They are arranged numerically according to A Bibliography of Writings of Harvey Cushing. The microfilm of the series includes only those additional copies which contain original correspondence, other unique material, or significant annotations. In most cases only the additional material, not the text, has been filmed. This material is targeted "From additional copy" and appears on the film after the text copy from the "Reprints" volume.

WRITINGS

Series III (Part I)

Rolls 135-153

Dates: 1902-1939

This series includes drafts, notes, outlines, and illustrations used in Cushing's writings. The series begins with lists of Cushing's writings, including the published Bibliography of Cushing's writings on roll 126. The remainder of the series is organized in the following sections:

Books and Monographs

Addresses, Papers, and Reports

Papers from Dr. Cushing's Clinics and Laboratories

Unpublished

Clinic and Research Notes

Within the first three sections materials are arranged according to the order in the published bibliography, which is basically chronological. The list includes the number (given in parentheses) assigned to each title in the bibliography but not the complete bibliographic citation.

The section Unpublished includes drafts for unpublished works, as well as notes for lectures. These materials are arranged in chronological order, with undated items appearing at the end of the section.

Typed or handwritten notes in Cushing's hand, which concern either Cushing's medical research or his clinical teaching assignments are arranged in the section Clinic and Research Notes. They are organized by topic and listed alphabetically.

FAMILY PAPERS

Series IV (Part I)

Rolls 154-158

Dates: 1745-1940

This series is composed of papers, including correspondence, financial records, writings, diaries, photographs, and memorabilia, which reflect the lives of four generations of Cushing family members. The series includes no professional material either written by or addressed to Harvey Cushing. Correspondence exchanged between family members and Harvey Cushing is in Series I.

The papers are organized according to the family member who either created them or held them as part of their personal papers. Files are arranged alphabetically by the names of these family members. The lives of family members in Massachusetts and Ohio are documented in these files as is the practice of medicine throughout the nineteenth century.

The series begins with a few folders of material relating to the Cushing family in general. These are followed by genealogical tables of the Cushing family, which were compiled by Harvey Cushing for his children.

Files for Betsey Maria Williams Cushing and Henry Kirke Cushing are among the largest in the series. These contain an exchange of letters between husband and wife during the Civil War, as well as diaries of Henry Kirke Cushing. The series also includes several folders of correspondence belonging to Katherine Crowell Cushing. The oldest materials in the series are financial accounts of David and John Cushing, which date from the late eighteenth century.
